Pod praporjem morske zvezde

Letos se na Kino Otoku potapljam pod filmsko površje, v globine, odkrivamo filmske bisere in filmske zvezde. 35 mm kult ure je nova sekcija, ki bo z izborom filmov in gostov – avtorjev izpostavila več pogledov kulture in pogledov na kulturo, za katero je s površnim očesom videti, da izginja. Predstavili se bodo ustvarjalci, ki 35-milimetrskega traku ne uporabljajo zgolj kot orodje, zapis za svoj filmski izraz, temveč se traku posvečajo s pozornostjo, namenjeno enakovrednemu sodelavcu ali koscu življenja.

Projekcije v Art kinu Odeon bodo pravi filmski dogodki, pospremili jih bomo z diskusijami in pogovori o različnih filmskih ter družbeno aktualnih temah.

V Izoli prvič pripluje tudi Podmornica; uvajamo namreč nov filmski vzgojno-kulturni program, namenjen otrokom, mladim in družinam. Podmornica želi spodbuditi aktivno spremljanje filmskih in drugih medijskih vsebin, vključevala bo filmske delavnice za mlade ter številne filme, ki jih bomo pospremili z uvodi in pogovori. Odrasli bodo v okviru Podmornice sodelovali na seminarjih za pedagoge in filmske delavce, ki se poklicno na kakršen koli način srečujejo s področjem filmske vzgoje. Z Art kino mrežo Slovenije bomo priredili srečanje z naslovom Kako do nacionalnega programa filmske vzgoje? S čezmejno izobraževalno platformo na področju filmske vzgoje GoNGLab bomo organizirali srečanje z naslovom Poučevati avdiovizualno kulturo v šoli: iziv modernosti. Predstavili bomo dolgoletne izkušnje poučevanja filmske vzgoje v šolah in program Cinemazero kot primer dobre prakse na tem področju. Program Podmornica – Otok za mularijo izvira iz velikega zanimanja za film, ki so ga najmlajši in njihovi starši ter vzgojitelji pokazali v zadnjih letih festivala. Pravi čas je za nov začetek na Otoku, za lasten filmsko-vzgojni program, ki bo rastel skupaj z mladim filmskim občinstvom obalno-kraškega in širšega primorskega prostora.

Podmornica se prvič predstavlja v varnem zavetju 9. Kino Otoka, vendar si prizadevamo, da bi v Izoli ostala tudi po njegovem zaključku – skozi vse leto do naslednjega festivala in naprej.

Under the Sea Star Banner

This year, Isola Cinema dives under the film surface into the depths, discovering film pearls and film stars. 35 mm kult-ure is a new section whose selection of films and guests/filmmakers will foreground several views of and on a culture that at first sight seems to be disappearing. It will present filmmakers that do not use 35 mm film only as a tool to record their cinematic expression, but give it the attention that an equal co-operator or a piece of life deserves. The screenings at Art Cinema Odeon will be proper film events, accompanied by discussions and talks about various film themes and topical social issues.

This year's edition will be the first to harbour Submarine, a new film educational and cultural programme for children, youngsters and families. Its aim is to encourage an active reception of film and other media content, it will include film workshops for the young, numerous films accompanied by an introduction and followed by a discussion. Grown-ups will be able to take part in the Submarine by attending seminars for pedagogues and film workers who in any way encounter the field of film education in their professional life. With the Art Cinema Network, we will organise a meeting entitled How to Arrive at a National Film Education Programme?, and with the GoNGLab – Cross-Border Educational Platform a lecture entitled Teaching Audiovisual Culture in School: The Challenge of Today, which will present long-time experiences of teaching film in schools and the Cinemazero programme as an example of good practice in this field. The Submarine – Isola Cinema for Kids programme proceeds from the great interest in film shown by the youngest and their parents and teachers at past editions of the festival. The time has come for a new beginning at Isola Cinema, for our own film educational programme, which will grow together with the young film audience of the Coastal-Karst region and the broader Primorska area.

The Submarine will first be presented in the safe harbour of the 9th edition of Isola Cinema, but we are endeavouring for it to remain in Izola also after the festival closes – throughout the year until the next edition and beyond.

Leto Silvana Furlana – Otoški poklon

Kino Otok se z veseljem in ponosom pridružuje praznovanju leta Silvana Furlana, ki ga je ob šestdeseti obletnici njegovega rojstva zasnova občina Nova Gorica. Kot eno mnogih filmskih mest, ki ga brez Silvana ne bi bilo, se bo v okviru Silvanovega zaliva svojemu prvemu botru in članu predsedstva festival poklonil na uvodni večer, ko bo prikazal njegov edini film, Deklica s frnikulami, posvečen Iti Rini, in zraven zavrtel še najslavnnejši film naše najslavnnejše filmske igralke, Erotikon.

Silvan in Ita Rina sta bila par, odkar pomnim. In tega tudi nista skrivala, predvsem Silvan, ki je njeni filmski podobi postavljal tako spomenike kot teorije, nazadnje pa tudi svoj edini film; Ita, ki je bila najprej v Divači Ida, pozneje pa v Beogradu in Budvi Tamara Đorđević, je vse odnesla s seboj že davnega leta 1979. Pravzaprav že veliko prej: gospod Đorđević jo je leta 1931 odtujil ne le naši deželi, ampak počasi tudi svetovnemu filmu in jo preselil v svojo hišo. Silvana to ni motilo; počakal je na svojo priložnost in jo približno sedemdeset let pozneje vrnil v njen rojstni kraj, kjer ji je postavil muzej. Zato je prav, da ju na naši slovesnosti znova združimo.

Erotikon Gustava Machatya je bil senzacija, tudi po zaslugu naše lepe Ide, in še danes sodi v repertoar svetovne filmske klasike. Na Otoku ga bomo prvič prikazali zunaj dvorane Slovenske kinoteke, prvič »pod zvezdami«, se pravi v letnem kinu in tako, kot poznemu nememu filmu, v katerega je že prodiral zvočni zapis, pritiče – z živo glasbeno spremljavo. Zanjo bo poskrbel naš prvi redni kinotečni pianist Andrej Goričar, ki je močno zaznamoval obdobje »Silvanove« kinoteke. Obeta se enkraten in čaroben večer večnih filmskih časov, ki ga bo, kot rečeno, uvedla Deklica s frnikulami, prvo in zadnje Silvanovo umetniško dejanje, v katerem je po poti Ite Rine poslal Karin Komljanec.

S tem želi Silvanov zaliv spomniti predvsem na tisti del Silvanove poti, ki je, tudi spričo neskončnih bitk za našo filmsko kulturo, ostala neprehojena. Že prej je sodeloval z mnogimi slovenskimi filmskimi režiserji (Slak, Anžlovar, Kozole, Šterk ...) in iz pisma očetu leta 1999 je razvidno, da se je želel bolj posvetiti literarnemu in filmskemu ustvarjanju, uresničiti pa je uspel le ene sanje, tiste najbolj žive, o svoji Iti Rini.

The Year of Silvan Furlan – Isola Cinema's Homage

With joy and pride, Isola Cinema joins in the Year of Silvan Furlan celebrations, conceived by the Municipality of Nova Gorica upon the 60th anniversary of his birth. As one of the many film places that would not exist had it not been for Silvan, it will pay tribute to its first godfather and member of the festival board by screening, in the framework of the Silvan's Bay programme, his only film, The Girl With Marbles, dedicated to Ita Rina. It will be followed by the most famous film of our most famous film actress, Erotikon.

Silvan and Ita Rina had been a couple since I can remember. And they did not hide it, especially Silvan, who reared monuments to her film image, propounded theories about it and in the end dedicated his only film to it: Ita, who was first Ida in Divača, and later Tamara Đorđević in Belgrade and Budva, took everything away with her already in 1979. Actually, much earlier even: in 1931, Mr. Đorđević alienated her not only from our country, but gradually from international cinema as well, and moved her to his house. This did not bother Silvan; he waited for his chance and, approximately 70 years later, he returned her to her childhood town, which he turned into her museum. It is right, therefore, that we should join them together again at our celebration.

Gustav Machatý's Erotikon, which still belongs to the repertoire of world film classics, was a sensation, thanks moreover to our beautiful Ida. At Isola Cinema, it will be shown outside the Slovenian Cinematheque for the first time, and for the first time »under the stars« at an open-air cinema. As befits a late silent film already affected by the advance of sound, it will be screened with live musical accompaniment by our first regular Cinematheque pianist, Andrej Goričar, who left a strong mark on the period of »Silvan's« Cinematheque. We are in for a unique and magical night of cinematic eternity, which we will start off with Silvan's first and last artistic act, The Girl With Marbles, in which he set Karin Komljanec down the path of Ita Rina.

Silvan's Bay thus wants to recall especially that part of Silvan's path that has remained untraversed, also due to the endless struggles for our film culture. He had cooperated with many Slovenian film directors before (Slak, Anžlovar, Kozole, Šterk...), and it is clear from his 1999 letter to his father that he wanted to devote more time to writing and filmmaking, but he managed to realise only one dream, the most vivid one about his Ita Rina.

Deklico s frnikulami, svoj edini avtorski film, je Silvan Furlan posvetil svoji največji muzi Iti Rini – bila je prva (in tudi edina) slovenska filmska zvezda, ki je vzniknila na filmskem nebu, še preden smo Slovenci imeli svojo kinematografijo, je velikokrat poudaril.

Ida Kravanja (1907–1979) z umetniškim imenom Ita Rina velja za znamenito divo nemškega in češkega filma dvajsetih in tridesetih let. S svojo edinstveno čutnostjo je blestela v praških, pariških in berlinskih filmskih studiih in (celo dvakrat) zavrnila vabilo v Hollywood.

V poetičnem srednjemetažnem igrano-dokumentarnem filmu Furlan oživi mit in veličino prve slovenske zvezde skozi raziskavo mlade slovenske igralke Marjane, ki preiskeuje sledi, odtise prizorišč, prostorov in krajev, kjer je Ita Rina odraščala in kasneje ustvarjala. Odtisi prizorišč v Marjanini glavi povzročijo pravo fantazijsko popotovanje.

Impresivna življenska zgodba lte Rine se tako – s prepletom dokumentarnih fotografij, filmskih prizorov in igranih elementov – zariše od njenega rojstva 7. julija 1907 v Divači pa vse do poroke z Miodragom Đordovićem 19. aprila 1931 v Beogradu, ko na vrhuncu slave prestopi v pravoslavno vero in sprejme odločitev, da se posveti družinskemu življenju. V vmesnem času je leta 1927 od doma pobegnila v Berlin in dobila svoje umetniško ime. Kmalu zatem, leta 1929, jo je med zvezde zapisal češki nemi Erotikon. Furlan je sicer za njeno najboljšo, najbolj dovršeno vlogo izbral Obešenjakovo Tončko iz istoimenskega zvočnega filma iz leta 1930, v katerem se Ita Rina ves čas pojavlja v prvem planu; sicer pa oba – Erotikon in Obešenjakova Tončka – sodita med najvidnejša dela češkega filma tistega časa.

V Deklici s frnikulami Ita Rina »nastopi« v treh podobah – upodobijo jo tri igralki v treh obdobjih: kot dekle, Divačanko Ido Kravanja, kot igralko in filmsko zvezdo Ito Rino ter kot Tamaro, ki se je umaknila iz evropskega filmskega spektakla.

»Ida Kravanja je nedvomno Slovenka, ki je vredna filma o sebi. Njen silovit žarek na še razmeroma nedolžnem filmskem nebu je bil nerazumljivo dolgo zakopan v tipičnem slovenskem pepelu. Silvan Furlan, varuh filmske tradicije po srcu in poklicu, je ta pepel razpihal – in našel v njem še vedno tlečo zvezdo: Ito Rino.« Peter Kolšek, Delo

SILVAN FURLAN

Rojen leta 1953 v Postojni, umrl leta 2005 v Ljubljani. Velja za eno osrednjih filmskih osebnosti v Jugoslaviji. Direktor in ustanovitelj Slovenske kinoteke, filmski publicist, skrbnik zgodovine slovenskega in svetovnega filma, filmski avtor, scenarist in pobudnik številnih aktivnosti na področju kinematografije. Zaznamoval je pravzaprav vsa področja filmske umetnosti in kulture, saj je bil filmski pedagog, programski vodja, kritik, teoretik, urednik, scenarist, režiser in snovalec kulturne politike.

Silvan Furlan was born in 1953 in Postojna, and died in 2005 in Ljubljana. He is considered as one of the main figures in the cinema field of former Yugoslavia. He was the director and founder of the Slovenian Cinematheque, a film journalist, a guardian of the history of Slovenian and world cinema, a filmmaker, a scriptwriter and the initiator of numerous activities in the field of cinema. He left a mark on each and every field of film art and culture in his capacities of film pedagogue, curator, critic, theoretician, editor, scriptwriter, director and cultural policy maker.

Silvan Furlan dedicated The Girl with Marbles, his only directorial effort, to his greatest muse Ita Rina – she was the first (and also only) Slovenian film star to have emerged in the film sky even before the Slovenians had their own cinema, he would often stress.

Ida Kravanja (1907–1979), alias Ita Rina, was a celebrated diva of German and Czech cinema of the 1920s and 1930s. With her unique sensuality, she shined at studios in Prague, Paris and Berlin, and twice even turned down invitations from Hollywood. In his poetic medium-length docudrama, Furlan revives the myth and greatness of the first Slovenian star through the research of Marjana, a young Slovenian actress investigating the traces and imprints of the settings, spaces and places where Ita Rina grew up and later worked. The imprints of these settings on Marjana's mind lead to a fantastic journey.

Through the intertwining of documentary photos, film scenes and acted inserts, Ita Rina's impressive life story is thus traced out from her birth on 7 July 1907 in Divača to her marriage with Miodrag Đorđević on 19 April 1931 in Belgrade, when, at the height of her fame, she converted to the Orthodox Church and decided to devote herself to family life. We find out that, in 1927, she ran away from home to Berlin and got her professional name.

Soon after, in 1929, the Czech silent film Erotikon propelled her to stardom. But according to Furlan, her best, most accomplished role was that of Tonka Sibenice (Gallows Toni) in the eponymous 1930 sound film, in which Ita Rina constantly appears in the foreground. Both, Erotikon and Tonka Sibenice, are among the most prominent works of Czech cinema of the time. In The Girl with Marbles, Ita Rina »appears« in three images – she is personated by three actresses in three periods: as Ida Kravanja, a girl from Divača, as Ita Rina, actress and film star, and as Tamara, who withdrew from the European film spectacle.

»Ida Kravanja is doubtlessly a Slovenian worthy of a film about her. Her powerful ray in the relatively innocent film sky had been buried incomprehensibly long in typical Slovenian ashes. Silvan Furlan, a guardian of film tradition by heart and by profession, blew these ashes away, thus discovering a still glowing star: Ita Rina.« Peter Kolšek, Delo

Neke nevihtne noči na osameli postaji obtiči neznanec. Zamudil je vlak, zato ga pod streho, k svoji brhki in nedolžni hčerki, vzame železniški čuvaj. Postavni George, svetovljan in ženskar, dekle zapelje in naslednjega jutra izgine v neznano. Andrea zanosi, a otrok se rodi mrtev. Neke druge usodne noči jo galantni neznanec reši pred posiljevalcem, zato ga vzame za moža. A njene misli se ves čas hrepeneče vračajo k prvemu ljubimcu in tisti vrtoglavci noči strasti iz uvodne sekvence, h kateri se bo vračal tudi gledalec. Sliši se kot že tolkokrat preigrana zgoda o ženski, žrtvi v vrtincu burne usode, razklani med sentimentalnim poželenjem in brezstrastnim, a stanovitim zakonskim življenjem. Pa gre v resnici za pionirsko delo filmske erotike in avantgardno klasiko nemega filma, ki utripa s čutnostjo in dekadenco dvajsetih let. Kljub melodramskim klišejem prevare in ljubosumja, sle in sramu, krivde in nazadnje vzgojne kazni je film vse prej kot puhla sentimentalalka ali trpkna in toga moralistična drama. Machatýjev (mehki) fokus je uperjen k enemu samemu objektu: ženski senzualnosti. Njenemu ovekovečenju služijo vsa sredstva njegove filmske govorice. Mladi, komaj 27-letni režiser je k filmu pritegnil mednarodno igralsko zasedbo, virtuoznega snemalca Václava Vícha ter velikana češkega poetizma in nadrealizma, Vítězslava Nezvala, ki je pod izvirnim naslovom Nedolžnost (Panenství) inkognito spisal filmsko predlogo. »Karkoli je človek za film napisal, so filmarji spreobrnili in zbanalizirali, zato pred premiero ni preostalo drugega, kot prosiči producenta, naj vas črta s seznama tistih, ki so bodisi resnično ali domnevno sodelovali pri filmu,« je negodoval nepodpisani Nezval. Publiko in kritiko, tudi evropsko, pa je film navdušil, čeprav je bil že ob premieri prikazan v okrnjeni verziji, v kakršni je krožil vse do leta 1993, ko ga je češki Nacionalni filmski arhiv z velikim trudom restavriral. Machatýjev kozmopolitski duh je presegel provincialno ozkost domače produkcije. Formalno inventiven, čuten in liričen, pristno erotičen, še danes sodoben in sofisticiran Erotikon je pomenil novitet in drzen odgon od sočasne češke kinematografije. Ekstaza (Extase, 1933), režiserjeva druga in še drznejša senzacija, »film, o katerem je šepetal ves svet«, je bila že na obzorju.

»Tako kot mora znati igralec 'vnesti' dušo v filmski lik, tako mora znati filmski režiser 'podariti dušo' filmu. V filmu Erotikon je to uspelo igralki in režiserju ... « Silvan Furlan

GUSTAV MACHATÝ

(1901–1963) Machatý pripada tisti generaciji filmskih režiserjev, ki se je kalila v praksi. Bodoči češki režiser se je že v zgodnjih 20-ih uril v ZDA, bojda celo pri Griffithu in Stroheimu. Bil je asistent režije, epizodni igralec, producent, tudi statist. Kot režiser je snemal zlasti na tujem, v Avstriji, Italiji in ZDA, ter se nazadnje ustalil v Münchenu. Svetovni sloves sta mu prinesli dve svojčas škandalozni erotični mojstrovini: Erotikon (1929) in Ekstaza (Extase, 1933), prva s senzualno Ito Rino, druga z golo Hedy Kiesler, ki je imela kasneje postati Lamarr.

(1901–1963) Machatý belongs to a generation of filmmakers who learned by practice. Seeking experience, he ventured to Hollywood in 1920, assisting Griffith and Stroheim, as the story goes. He served as an extra, acting, producing, and later directing most of his films abroad. But what brought the young Czech international fame were his highly acclaimed and scandalous erotic masterpieces: Erotikon (1929) and Ecstasy (Extase, 1933), the first featuring a sensuous Slovenian silent film diva Ita Rina, the latter an unknown and nude Hedy Kiesler, later to become Lamarr.

On a stormy night, a stranger gets stuck at a desolate station. He has missed his train, so the station master with a pretty and innocent daughter takes him in. The handsome George, a cosmopolitan and a womaniser, seduces the girl and disappears the next morning. Andrea gets pregnant, but the child is stillborn. On another fateful night, a gallant stranger saves her from a rapist, so she marries him. But in her mind, she keeps yearningly returning to her first lover and that giddy night of passion from the introductory sequence, to which the viewer keeps returning with her. It sounds like the old story of a woman as a victim in the whirlwind of a tumultuous fate, torn between sentimental lust and passionless but constant married life. But, in fact, it is a pioneering work in cinematic eroticism and an avant-garde classic of silent cinema, pulsating with the sensuality and decadence of the 1920s. Despite the melodramatic clichés of deceit and jealousy, lust and shame, guilt and a salutary lesson, the film is all but a shallow sentimental story or a bitter moralistic drama. Machatý's (soft) focus is directed towards a single object: female sensuality. It is its immortalisation that all the devices of his film language serve. The young director managed to engage an international cast, the virtuoso cinematographer Václav Vích and the master of Czech poeticism and surrealism Vítězslav Nezval, who anonymously wrote the scenario, originally entitled Innocence (Panenství). »Whatever I wrote for the film, the filmmakers perverted and trivialised, so that before the opening night there was nothing else to do but ask the producer to strike me from the list of those who actually or supposedly worked on the film,« complained the uncredited Nezval. But the film was a success with the audiences and the critics, in other European countries as well, despite the fact that the film already opened in an abridged version, which was distributed until 1993, when the Czech National Film Archive restored it with great effort. Machatý's cosmopolitan spirit transcended the provincial narrowness of domestic production. Formally inventive, sensuous and lyrical, genuinely erotic, still modern and sophisticated, Erotikon represented a novelty and a bold breakaway from contemporaneous Czech cinema. Ecstasy (Extase, 1933), the director's second and even bolder sensation, »the film which the whole world whispered about,« was already on the horizon.

»Just as the actor must learn to 'breathe life' into his character, the filmmaker must learn to 'give life' to his film. With Erotikon, both actress and director have succeeded...« Silvan Furlan

Tajski cineast Apichatpong Weerasethakul, ki je lani predsedoval mednarodni žiriji na filmskem festivalu v Locarnu, je ob podelitev glavne nagrade – zlatega leoparda Jean-Claudea Brisseauju za njegovo nedavno delo, ezoterični triler – odločitev žirije utemeljil z besedami: »Filma ni posnel ostarel filmar, pač pa filmar, ki je mlad po srcu.«

Nizkoproračunski film, posnet z minimalnimi sredstvi – Brisseau ga je v celoti in z majhno (tokrat prvič digitalno) kamero posnel v lastnem stanovanju v Parizu, v naslovni vlogi pa nastopi naturščica (Virginie Legeay) –, zaradi poigravanja s formalnimi elementi iz francoske kinematografije deluje kot poklon francoskemu filmu.

Ritem filmu tako narekujejo filmski in osebni spomini.

Brisseau (ki napiše tudi scenarij in film producira) odigra vlogo Michela, upokojenega ovdovelega profesorja matematike, ki si prizadeva zapolnilti vsakdan s pisanjem teoretskega dela, zasnovanega na prevrševanju religioznih, političnih in umetnostnih razsežnosti, da mu misli ne bi uhajale k že dolgo preminuli ženi, ki jo še vedno zelo pogreša; tudi sam se zaveda, da se počasi poslavila od življenja. Nekega dne se v ta umirjeni vsakdan prikrade mlada, fatalna brezdomka Dora. K Michelu se zateče naravnost iz primeža bivšega ljubimca, ki jo je pretepel pred njegovimi vrtati.

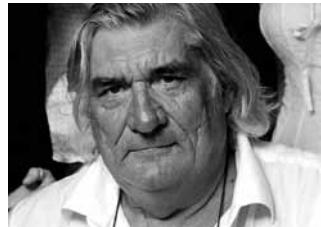

Dora postane Michelova muza, stanovanje pa se kmalu po njenem prihodu spremeni v oder, ki ga zavzamejo misteriozni fenomeni. Nora ljubezen se prepleta z zgoščenimi didaktičnimi monologi o bogu, filozofskem premisleku o neznanem, z notranjim bojem obeh glavnih likov in z njunimi utripajočimi obsesijami. Kakor v svojih prejšnjih delih Brisseau tudi tokrat mojstrsko krmari med parodijo in resnobnostjo realnosti, zateka se k mitom in iluzijam. Ko Michelova tragična usoda in neizbežno časovno minevanje postajata očitljiva, se pokaže prava moč iluzije, potreba po zatekanju k njej pa se izkaže za nujno.

»Potreboval sem nekaj časa, da sem spoznal, da je ena izmed večnih tem v vseh mojih filmih ta, da živimo v svetu, ki je popolnoma iluzoričen. /.../ Rad delam filme. Rad delam težke reči, tako da se zdi, da so lahke. To je povezano z mojimi ljubeznnimi iz otroštva, ko sem živel v svetu iluzije, da bi ušel vsakdanjemu življenju. /.../ Vtis imam, da je vse skoraj končano. Toliko sem jih dobil po gobcu, da nisem preveč optimističen. Še vedno pa imam željo po tem, da bi delal filme, ki jih druge ni mogoče videti.« Jean-Claude Brisseau

JEAN-CLAUDE BRISSEAU

Rojen leta 1944 v Parizu. Preden je posnel prve amaterske filme, je poučeval francoščino. Zaposlil se je na Institutu Nationale de l'Audiovisuel, ki je financiral njegove prve televizijske projekte. V svojih delih obravnava teme nasilja, morale, katolicizma, mysticizma in iracionalnega. Leta 2003 so na festivalu v Rotterdamu organizirali retrospektivo njegovih del. Dekle od nikoder part je lani osvojil zlatega leoparda na Mednarodnem filmskem festivalu v Locarnu.

Born in Paris in 1944. Taught French before he started making films on an amateur basis. He went on to work for INA (Institut Nationale de l'Audiovisuel), which also produced his debut film. The oeuvre that followed concentrated on themes such as violence, morality, Catholicism, mysticism and the irrational. In France, his films are alternately denounced and applauded. In 2003, Rotterdam honoured him as a Film Maker in Focus. Last year The Girl from Nowhere won the Golden Leopard at the Locarno International Film Festival.

At last year's Locarno International Film Festival award ceremony, Apichatpong Weerasethakul, the Thai cineaste who headed the International Jury, justified the jury's decision to award the Golden Leopard to Jean-Claude Brisseau for his recent esoteric thriller in this way: »It's not by an aging filmmaker but by a filmmaker who is young at heart.«

Due to its playful use of the formal elements characteristic of French films, this low-budget work, made with minimal means – Brisseau filmed it with a small (and for the first time, digital) camera in his own apartment in the middle of Paris and cast a non-actress (Virginie Legeay) in the leading role – acts as an homage to French cinema. The rhythm of the film is thus determined by cinematic and personal memories.

Brisseau (who also wrote and produced the film) plays the role of Michel, a retired and widowed professor of mathematics who tries to fill his days with writing a theoretical work based on questioning the religious, political and artistic dimensions of life so as not to think about his long-diseased wife whom he still misses very much, aware that he himself is nearing his own end. One day, Dora, a young and homeless femme fatale, steals her way into his quiet everyday life, seeking refuge from the clutches of her former lover who beat her in front of Michel's door.

Dora becomes Michel's muse. Soon after her arrival, the apartment turns into a stage taken over by mysterious phenomena. Amour fou intertwines with condensed didactical monologues about God, philosophical reflections on the unknown, the inner struggles of both protagonists and their pulsating obsessions. As in his previous works, Brisseau masterfully steers between the parody and gravity of reality, resorting to myths and illusions. As Michel's tragic fate and the inevitable passing of time become tangible, the true power of illusion comes to light, while the need to resort to illusion proves to be necessary.

»It took me a while to realize that one of the perpetual themes of my films is that we live in a totally illusory world. /.../ I like making movies. I like to make difficult things in a way that they seem easy. This is linked to my childhood loves, when I lived in a world of illusion to escape everyday life. /.../ I have a feeling that everything is almost complete. I got so many punches in the face that I'm not very optimistic. But I still have a desire to make films that can not be seen elsewhere.« Jean-Claude Brisseau

Ruska tovorna ladja Diego Star zaradi pokvarjenega motorja obtiči sredi kanadske reke Saint Lawrence. Vodstvo za dogodek okrivi etnično raznoliko podpalubno osebje, medtem ko Traoré, stični inženir iz Slonokoščene obale in vodja izmene, vztraja, da so za okvaro motorja krivi lastniki ladje, saj jih je sam večkrat opozoril na njegovo dotrajanost. Med čakanjem na popravilo člane posadke naselijo v domove lokalnega prebivalstva. Traoré tako spozna Fanny, mlado mater samohranilko, ki se trudi preživeti v okolju, kjer so možnosti za dostojno življenje omejene. Med njima počasi vzklikuje zaupanje.

S svojim celovečernim prvencem, ki je svetovno premjero doživel v sekciji Bright Future na letošnjem filmskem festivalu v Rotterdamu, se je kanadski režiser Frédéric Pelletier postavil ob bok quebeškim avtorjem mlajše in srednje generacije Xavierju Dolanu, Denisu Coteju in Denisu Villeneuveju, ki so se v preteklih letih dobra uveljavili na mednarodnem festivalskem prizorišču. Njegov Diego Star je nesentimentalna socialna drama, imuna na običajne scenaristične obrazce. Razstira nam pogled v svet, ki z delavci ravna kot s kolateralno škodo, njihov občutek za pravičnost in pokončnost pa kroji strah pred izgubo zaposlitve oziroma plačila; svet, v katerem postanejo vidni pogubni učinki ekonomskih interesov na vsakodnevna življenja delavcev in neučinkovitost državnih institucij, ki bi jih morale zaščititi. Potem ko se Traoré izpove kanadskih oblastem, ki nesrečo preiskujejo, namreč ostane brez plačila in službe, izobčen s strani sodelavcev, ki mu odrečajo solidarnost, 10.000 kilometrov stran od doma sredi zasnežene kanadske pokrajine.

»Zame socialni realizem ni toliko žanr, kolikor je etika, način gledanja in razumevanja sveta. V francoščini uporabljamo izraz 'à hauteur d'homme' za obvezno, da stvarem in ljudem pogledamo naravnost v obraz, brez kakšnekoli prizanesljivosti ali pomilovanja.« Frédéric Pelletier

FRÉDÉRICK PELLETIER

Rojen leta 1975 v Kanadi. Živi in dela v Montrealu. Po končani šoli za umetnost se je vpisal na študij filmske produkcije na univerzi Concordia. Kasneje se je zaposilil v kanadskem Nacionalnem filmskem svetu, delal pa je tudi v Quebecski kinoteki. Posnel je več kratkometražev in dokumentarcev, med drugim L'hiver longtemps (2005) in L'air de rien (2006). Diego Star (2013) je njegov celovečerni prvenec.

Born in 1975 in Canada, he lives and works in Montreal. After art school, he studied Film Production at Concordia University. Upon graduating, Pelletier worked at the National Film Board of Canada and the Cinémathèque Québécoise. He has also written and directed several short films and documentaries, among others, L'hiver longtemps (2005) and L'air de rien (2006). Diego Star (2013) is his feature debut.

Due to engine failure, the Russian cargo ship Diego Star gets stranded on the Saint Lawrence River in Canada. The management blames the event on the ethnically diverse below-deck crew.

Traoré, a stoic engineer from the Ivory Coast and shift supervisor, insists that the ship's owners are responsible since they had not listened to his repeated warnings regarding the engine's run-down condition. While waiting for the ship to be repaired, members of the crew are housed with the local population. Traoré thus meets Fanny, a young single mother trying to survive in an environment where the possibilities for a decent life are limited. Gradually, trust develops between the two.

With his feature debut, which premiered in the Bright Future section at this year's Rotterdam film festival, Canadian director Frédéric Pelletier can stand alongside the Quebec auteurs of the younger generation, such as Xavier Dolan, Denis Côté and Denis Villeneuve, who have become well-established on the international festival scene in recent years. Diego Star, an unsentimental social drama, immune to the usual screenwriting formulas, gives us an insight into a world where workers are treated as collateral damage, while their sense of justice and uprightness is shaped by their fear of losing their jobs or salaries – a world in which the destructive effects of economic interests on the everyday life of workers and the inefficiency of state institutions that should protect them become visible. After Traoré speaks up to the Canadian authorities investigating the accident, he is left without a job and no back pay, ostracized by his co-workers, who refuse to show any solidarity with him, and 10.000 kilometres away from home in the middle of the snowy Canadian landscape.

»For me, social realism is less a genre than an ethic, a way to look and to understand the World. In French, we use the expression 'à hauteur d'homme', for this obligation to look at things and people right in the face, without any form of indulgence or pity.«

Na svoji zemlji je film posebnega, samo njemu lastnega čustvenega ozračja, ki mu daje tisto enotnost, kakršne mu bolj anekdotska kot dramatična konstrukcija scenarija ni mogla dati. Prav v tem pa se skriva poglavitna režiserjeva zasluga. Za začetek prezenetljiv uspeh je dosegel najprej z dobro izbiro igralcev, zlasti pa s tem, kako zanesljivo je vodil njihovo igro, tako da skoraj ni zaslediti, da so povečini gledališki igralci. S preprostimi vizualnimi sredstvi je znal brez eksibicij kamere in sploh skromnimi tehničnimi pomagali ustvariti v mizansceni in igralski interpretaciji nekaj že kar dovršenih prizorov, ki odkrivajo njegovo osnovno nagnjenost k emotivno nabiti intimi, ozarjeni bolj s poetičnim nadihom kot prežeti z dramatično močjo. /.../
A kakšna je v absolutnem smislu vrednost filma ne glede na izredno navdušenje gledalcev, ki so vselej spontano zaploskali, kadar so prebrali na platnu, da gledajo prvi slovenski umetniški film? Na svoji zemlji je predvsem izredno prirsčeno delo, realizirano z veliko ljubeznijo, revolucionarna manifestacija narodne biti. V umetniškem pogledu prinaša marsikaj, kar lahko ugodno sprejema tudi strog ocenjevalec. V prvi polovici se je posrečilo ustvariti enoten prostor zaledja in bojišča, vasi z njenim življenjem in bojno dejavnostjo partizanov, ki in isti dolini minirajo železniško progo in to vaščani slišijo. Vas je vključena v boj, žrtve padajo med vaščani in partizani, vsi so eno in vsi pripadajo Baški grapi. Odlomek iz besedila Vladimirja Kocha v knjigi France Štiglic, ki je izšla leta 1983 v zbirki Slovenski film pri Slovenskem gledališkem in filmskem muzeju v Ljubljani.

»Takrat je bil družbeni položaj filma veliko bolj stabilen, kot je danes. V tisti zlati filmski dobi, tja do leta 1951, so nam filme plačevali po metru. Vsi filmski ljudje smo živeli v zelo ustvarjalni sredini, živeli smo intenzivno umetniško življenje. Brali smo tekste, se po cele dneve zadrževali v laboratoriju in v tistih časih je bila naša edina skrb čim več vedeti in znati, čim bolj spoznavati filmsko tehniko in čim bolj delati. Takrat je bilo tudi oblikovanje filmskega dela bolj načrtno kot danes in tako poleg želje za znanjem in uspešnim delom nismo imeli drugih problemov – ne tako kot danes, ko se moramo boriti za filmski program in našo poklicno eksistenco.« France Štiglic, 1973

FRANCE ŠTIGLIC

(1919–1993) Velikan slovenskega filma. Leta 1948 je posnel prvi slovenski igralni zvočni celovečer Na svoji zemlji. Zatem med njegove vidnejše filme sodijo: protivojni Dolina miru (1956), za katerega je v Cannesu nagradu za najboljšo moško vlogo prejel John Kitzmiller, pripoved o antisemitizmu Deveti krog (1960), nominiran za tujejezičnega oskarja, v ekspresionističnem slogu posnet Balada o trobentih in oblaku (1961), komedija Tistega lepega dne (1962) in partizanska komedija in večna uspešnica Ne joči, Peter (1964). Režiral je tudi za televizijo, bil je publicist in kulturnopolitični delavec ter profesor za filmsko režijo in igro.

(1919–1993) A colossus of Slovenian cinema. In 1948, he made the first Slovenian sound feature On Our Own Land. Among his more prominent films are: the anti-war The Valley of Peace (1956), which brought John Kitzmiller the Best Actor Award at the Cannes Film Festival, The Ninth Circle (1960), a tale about anti-Semitism nominated for the Oscar for Best Foreign Language Film, the expressionistic The Ballad of the Trumpet and the Cloud (1961), the comedy That Beautiful Day (1962) and the partisan comedy and eternal hit Don't Cry, Peter (1964). He was also a TV director, a journalist, a culturo-political worker and a professor of film directing and acting.

On Our Own Land is a film with a special, unique emotional atmosphere, which gives it a unity that the more anecdotic than dramatic composition of the script could not have. It is precisely this atmosphere that is the director's main credit. He achieved a surprising success firstly by a good selection of actors, but especially by infallibly guiding their acting, so one can hardly detect that they are mostly theatre actors. With simple visual means, without any camera exhibitions and by using modest technical tools, he managed to create a few quite accomplished scenes in view of the mise-en-scène and the actors' interpretation, revealing his basic tendency towards emotionally charged intimacy, which is sooner illuminated by poetic inspiration than permeated with dramatic power. /.../

But what is the film's value in the absolute sense regardless of the exceptional enthusiasm of the viewers who always spontaneously applauded when they read on the screen that they were watching the first Slovenian feature film? On Our Own Land is above all an exceptionally hearty work realised with great love, a revolutionary manifestation of national being. In the artistic aspect, it brings many things that even a severe critic can receive favourably. In the first part, the film manages to establish a unitary space of the home front and the battleground, the village with its life and the battle activity of the partisans mining the railway in the valley, which the villagers hear. The village is included in the struggle, there are victims among the villagers and the partisans, they are all one and they all belong to Baška grapa.

Excerpt from Vladimir Koch's text in France Štiglic, a book published in 1983 as part of the Slovenski film collection by the Slovenian Theatre and Film Museum in Ljubljana.

»The social position of cinema at the time was much more stable than it is today. In that golden age of cinema, until 1951, we got paid for films by the meter. All of us in the film industry lived in a very creative community, and led a very intense artistic life. We read texts, spent all our days at the lab; in those times, our only care was to know as much as possible, to get acquainted with film technology as best as possible and to work to the best of our abilities. At the time, the organising of film work was more planned than today and so, besides the thirst for knowledge and the desire for successful work, we had no other problems – not like today when we have to fight for a film programme and our professional existence.« France Štiglic, 1973

Nahid Persson Sarvestani si je pred revolucijo leta 1979 kot študentka in levičarska aktivistka v imenu svobodnega in demokratičnega Irana prizadevala za padec diktature Reza Pahlavija. V strahu pred nasiljem novega režima, ki se je namenil še bolj surovo obračunati s (sekularno) opozicijo, se je zatekla na Švedsko, kjer je kasneje postala priznana režiserka dokumentarnih filmov. Tri desetletja po odhodu iz domovine so ji podobe protestnikov na teheranskih ulicah ob predsedniških volitvah priklicale v spomin mladostna leta, s tem pa tudi občutke krivde, intimne izgube in željo izvedeti, kaj se je zgodilo z njenimi nekdanjimi tovarišicami.

Od tistih, ki so preživele, jih zdaj pet živi razkropljenih po svetu. Njihove zgodbe izrisujejo pretresljivo sliko psihičnega in fizičnega pekla, v katerem so več let živele kot politične zapornice v islamskičnemu režimu: od nadrobnih opisov nečloveških bivanjskih pogojev do brutalnih metod, s katerimi so jih pripadniki revolucionarne garde poskušali spremeniti v »žive mrtvece«. Izkušnja, ki so jo prestale, jih pravzaprav nikoli ni zares zapustila, le da se zdaj kaže skozi njihovo umetniško ustvarjanje oziroma kot katalizator nadaljnega političnega angažmaja. Ukradena revolucija je izjemno oseben dokumentarec, ki daje prednost vsebini pred obliko, pogovoru pred intervjujem, obrazu, ki se spominja, pred arhivsko podobo ... Film, ki s prepletanjem intimne in kolektivne zgodovine ne učinkuje le kot obsodba režimskega nasilja, temveč tudi kot poklon vzdržljivosti in moči posameznika.

»Ukradena revolucija je film o grozovitih zločinah nasilja, ki jih je režim Irana izvajal in jih še danes izvaja nad svojim ljudstvom. In vendar je tudi film o preživetju, neomajnosti misli in notranji moči, o katerih nam pripoveduje generacija, ki je nastopila pred arabsko pomladjo ...« Nahid Persson Sarvestani

NAHID PERSSON SARVESTANI

Rojena leta 1960 v Iranu, sodi med priznane skandinavске ustvarjalke dokumentarnih filmov. Njeno filmografijo sestavlajo dela, kot so Prostitutionen bakom sljjan (Prostitution: Behind the Veil, 2004), One Day in Iran (2006), Fyra fruar - en man (Four Wives - One Man, 2007), Drottningen och jag (The Queen and I, 2008) in druga. Je dobitnica več mednarodnih nagrad, zaradi neizprosne kritike islama v svojih filmih pa mora pogosto ustvarjati težkih in nevarnih razmerah.

Born in 1960 in Iran. One of the more acknowledged Scandinavian documentary filmmakers. Her works include Prostitution: Behind the Veil (2004), One Day in Iran (2006), Four Wives - One Man (2007), The Queen and I (2008) and others. She has received several international awards. Because of the relentless critique of Islam in her films, she often works in hard and dangerous conditions.

Before the 1979 revolution, Nahid Persson Sarvestani, a student and leftist activist at the time, strived for the fall of Reza Pahlavi's dictatorship in the name of a free and democratic Iran. Fearing the violence of the new regime set on an even more brutal reckoning with the (secular) opposition, she took refuge in Sweden, where she later became a renowned documentary filmmaker. Three decades after leaving her homeland, the images of protestors in the streets of Tehran during presidential elections brought back the memories of her youthful years and with them the feelings of guilt, intimate loss and the desire to find out what had happened to her former colleagues.

Five of the survivors live scattered around the world. Their stories paint a distressing picture of the psychical and physical hell in which they lived for many years as political prisoners in the Islamist regime: from detailed descriptions of inhuman living conditions to brutal methods with which the members of the revolutionary guard tried to transform them into the »living dead«. The experience they went through never really left them, but it now manifests itself in their artistic creation or as a catalyst for further political engagement.

My Stolen Revolution is an exceptionally personal documentary that favours content over form, conversation over interview, a remembering face over an archival image... By intertwining intimate and collective history, this film not only condemns regime violence, but also pays tribute to the persistence and strength of an individual.

«My Stolen Revolution is a film about those dreadful crimes of human abuse which the regime in Iran has perpetrated, and is still perpetrating against its own people. But it is also a film about survival, conviction of thought, and inner strength told by the generation that came before the Arab Spring...» Nahid Persson Sarvestani

Na grozo ostarelega duhovnika v majhno italijansko cerkev vkorakajo delavci s stroji, da bi iz nje odstranili klopi, slikarje in razpelo. Istega dne ponoči se sredi divje nevihte tja pred oblastmi zateče skupina priseljencev brez papirjev na poti iz Afrike v Francijo. Duhovnik, ki se odloči, da bo svoje goste pred represivnim zakonom branil v imenu krščanske dobrote, jim dovoli, da si v opustošeni cerkveni ladji postavijo improvizirana prebivališča.

Ermanno Olmi velja za enega ključnih italijanskih avtorjev, slovenskemu občinstvu pa se je v popolni retrospektivi v organizaciji Slovenske kinoteke predstavl leta 2004. Na njegovem opusu je pustila močan pečat katoliška vera, vendar Olmi nikoli ni podlegel dogmi; ali, kot zapiše Tullio Kezich v besedilu s konca sedemdesetih: »Zagotovo je krščanski poet, vendar poet z občutkom imanence, ki mu brani, da bi ubiral bližnjice samozadostne pobožnosti.« Po Stotih željih (2007) se je nameraval posvetiti ustvarjanju zgolj dokumentarnih filmov, a si je zaradi bolezni, ki mu preprečuje dolga potovanja, premisliš in posnel Vas iz kartona. Zasnoval jo je kot novodobno svetopisemsко priliko, v kateri priseljence portretira kot sveto družino in cerkvenika kot judeža, v njeno središče pa postavi Michaela Lonsdale v vlogi duhovnika, ki se pred smrtno spopada s krizo vere in svojega poslanstva. Tako kot njegova cerkev na začetku gre tudi duhovnik skozi nekakšno desakralizacijo, dokler se naposled ne utrdi v prepričanju, da je edino, kar šteje, dejanje (dobrote). Še toliko bolj, ko so ga potrebeni sans-papier, v iskanju dostenjega življenja odrinjeni na svetovni politični in ekonomski rob.

»Zame je občinstvo naslovjenec, ki si zasluzi vse spoštovanje. Ko gredo ljudje na družbeni obisk k prijateljem, se različno pripravijo – nekateri se lepo oblečejo, da bi naredili vtis, drugi si med potjo izmišljajo šale, s katerimi bodo zabavali prisotne ... S tem pa se pogosto izneverijo sami sebi. To, da se človek prilagaja domnevnim zahtevam drugih, po mojem ni pošteno, ne do drugih, še manj pa do samega sebe. Le zakaj bi igral nekaj, kar nisem, samo zato da bi me ljudje sprejeli?« Ermanno Olmi

ERMANNO OLMI

Rodi se leta 1931 v Italiji. Velja za enega najpomembnejših avtorjev italijanskega filma. Svojo ustvarjalno pot začne kmalu po koncu vojne kot režiser dokumentarcev. Leta 1959 izide njegov prvenec Čas se je ustavil (Il tempo si è fermato). V naslednjih desetletjih posname več odmevnih filmov, med njimi Služba (Il posto, 1961), Drevo za cokle (L'albero degli zoccoli, 1978) in Legenda o svetem pivcu (La leggenda del santo bevitore, 1988). Za svoje delo prejme številne nagrade na mednarodnih festivalih.

Born in 1931 in Italy. He is considered to be one of the most important auteurs of Italian cinema. He started his career soon after WWII as a documentary filmmaker. In 1959, he made his first film Time Stood Still (Il tempo si è fermato). In the following decades he made several resounding films, among them The Job (Il posto, 1961), The Tree of Wooden Clogs (L'albero degli zoccoli, 1978) and The Legend of the Holy Drinker (La leggenda del Santo Bevitore, 1988). He has received numerous awards for his work at international festivals.

To the horror of an aged priest, workers with machines enter a small Italian church to remove its pews, paintings and the cross. That same night, in the middle of a raging storm, a group of immigrants without papers on their way from Africa to France and on the run from the authorities take refuge in it. The priest, who decides to defend his guests from the repressive law in the name of Christian goodness, lets them set up makeshift dwellings in the desolate nave.

Ermanno Olmi is considered one of the key Italian auteurs, whose works were presented to the Slovenian audience in a complete retrospective by the Slovenian Cinematheque in 2004. His oeuvre is strongly marked by the Catholic faith, but Olmi has never succumbed to its dogma, or as Tullio Kezich wrote in his text at the end of the 1970s: »he is definitely a Christian poet, but a poet with a sense of immanence forbidding him to take the shortcuts of self-sufficient piousness.« After One Hundred Nails (2007), he intended to devote himself to making documentaries, but changed his mind due to his illness, which prevents him from taking any long-distance trips, and made The Cardboard Village. He conceived it as a modern biblical parable in which immigrants are portrayed as the Holy Family and the sexton as Judas, featuring Michael Lonsdale in the role of the priest who faces a crisis of faith and of his mission before death. Like his church at the beginning, the priest, too, goes through a sort of desacralisation, until he finally reaches the firm belief that the only thing that counts is an act (of kindness). Even more so when the ones needing it are the sans-papiers in search of a decent life, pushed to the political and economic margins of the world.

»For me, the audience is an addressee that deserves all respect. When people go for a social visit to their friends, they prepare differently – some dress nicely to make an impression, others think up jokes on the way to entertain the people there ... They thereby often betray themselves. I think that one's adapting to the supposed demands of others is not fair to others but even less so to oneself. Why would I pretend to be something I am not only for people to accept me?« Ermanno Olmi

Filmska kritičarka Ljubov Arkus in snemalec Ališer Hamidhodžajev srečata Antona, avtističnega mladeniča, ki z materjo samohranilko prebiva v razpadajočem stanovanju na obrobju mesta, v sistemu, kjer »avtizem kot zdravstvena diagnoza ne obstaja«. K fantu ju je privedel kratek poetični sestavek z naslovom Ljudje. »Ljudje so končni. Ljudje letijo,« zapiše Anton na koncu sestavka, in v teku naslednjih štirih let, ki jih kamera ves čas nevsiljivo in mojstrsko beleži, se zgoditi prav to. Ko mati Rinata zboleli za rakom, Antonu ne preostane drugega kot psihiatrična bolnišnica, v kateri bo bržkone prezivel preostanek svojega življenja. Tako bi šla ta zgodba, če se ne bi nekaj neznansko angažirana filmska ekipa odločila ukrepati in mu dati krila.

Kamera, brez potrebe po izčrpni razlagi in brez prisile togo začrtane strukture, spreminja mladeniča, izgubljenega v lastnem svetu. Neskončno ponavljajoča se dnevna opravila ne uspejo prikleniti njegove pozornosti. Pomen in smisel vsakdanje rutine se mu vedno znova izmuzneta. Edino, kar zahteva, je »malo srčnosti«. Išče tistega, ki ga bo razumel. Nič ga ne zadane bolj kot izdaja, tako kot vsakega izmed nas. A čeprav film naslikava pretanjjen portret avtističnega fanta, zaklenjenega v globine lastne notranjosti, je njegova resnična substanca srečanje človeka z drugim človekom in spontana preobrazba, v kateri neko življenje postane filmska snov, ta pa zopet preraste v življenje.

Krišilec dokumentarnih postulatov se ne ustavi pri motrenju, pač pa vstopi v življenje in mu ponudi rešitev. Ne gre mu zgoj za to, kaj lahko kamerino oko razkrije, ampak kaj lahko ostvari drzno in čisto filmsko dejanje, kino-akcijo. »Kmalu zatem sem doumela, da je bila kamera glavni akter te zgodbe,« pravi ob koncu filma Ljubov Arkus, pretanjena pripovedovalka: »Kamera je pomagala očetu sprejeti odločitev. Kamera je podaljšala Rinatino življenje – umrla je, ko je kamera mirovala. Kamera je spremenila Antonata. Kamera je spremenila mene.« Kamera, zagotovo, a tudi snemalec, režiserka in tisti fant.

»Od režijskega prvenca Ljubov Arkus, ki se s filmsko mislijo že vrsto let profesionalno ukvarja in ustvarja eno najboljših filmskih revij, kar jih poznam, bi pričakovali izpiljeno formo in prefinjeno igro filmskih referenc. Anton je tukaj je posnet v nasprotju s temi pričakovanji, ta film je nekaj čisto drugega. Filmska izrazna sredstva mu služijo za razkrivanje čistega bistva, raziskovanje človekove narave in posredovanje tistega, česar o sebi niti ne vemo.« Aleksandr Sokurov

LJUBOV ARKUS

Rojena leta 1960 v Lvovu (Ukrajina). Diplomirala iz scenaristike in filmske teorije na Vseruskem državnem inštitutu za kinematografijo (VGIK). Po študiju ruskega formalizma je delala pri Viktorju Šklovskem, nato v studiu Lenfilm. Je ustanoviteljica in odgovorna urednica revije Seans (od 1989) ter umetniška vodja založniško-producjske hiše Masterskaja Seans. Predavala je na Sanktpeterburški univerzi za film in televizijo in je idejna avtorica enciklopedije sodobnega ruskega filma. Anton je tukaj je njen režijski prvenec.

Born in Lviv (Ukraine) in 1960, she graduated from the Russian State Institute of Cinematography (VGIK) with a degree in screenwriting and film studies. Worked as literary secretary for Viktor Shklovsky, and screenplay editor at Lenfilm Studios. She is founder and chief editor of Seans magazine (since 1989), and artistic director of the Séance Workshop, a publishing house, production and educational center. She is the originator and compiler of a Encyclopedia of Russian Film. Anton's Right Here is her directorial debut.

Longtime film critic Lyubov Arkus and cinematographer Alisher Khamidkhodzhaev encounter Anton, an autistic young man, living with his mother Rinata in a shabby apartment on the outskirts of a large city, in a system where »autism is not recognized as a medical condition.« What led them to Anton was his poetic short essay entitled People. »People are finite. People fly,« writes Anton, and over the course of the following four years, unobtrusively and masterfully recorded on film, that is exactly what happens. The family's situation takes a turn for the worse, when Rinata, the boy's sole caretaker, is diagnosed with cancer, leaving Anton with little choice but that of a mental institution where he would most likely be hospitalized for life. Were it not for a group of incredibly committed filmmakers who decide to take action and give the boy wings.

Without the need to explicate or impose an overbearing structure, the camera glides in parallel with a boy, lost in his universe. Repetitive tasks cannot command his attention. The meaning and purpose of everyday routines constantly slip away from his grasp. What he demands is »a bit of heart«, someone who will understand him. What he finds most traumatic is betrayal, as do we all. But while the film builds a thoughtful portrayal of an autistic child locked deep within himself, its true substance is the story of a human encounter, and a spontaneous transformation in which a life becomes film subject which in turn becomes life. What is at the core of this rule-breaking documentary, is not merely observing, but entering this life and providing its solution. Not only what the camera's eye can reveal, but what can be realized by bold and straightforward Cine-Action. »I had long since realized,« says Arkus, our gentle narrator, as the film draws to a close, »that the camera was the main actor in this story. The camera had helped his father to make the decision. The camera extended Rinata's life – she died when the camera was off. The camera transformed Anton. The camera transformed me.« Yes, the camera, surely, but also the cameraman, a director and a boy.

»From a directorial debut by Lyubov Arkus, for many years professionally contemplating filmmaking and producing the best of all cinema magazines I know, we might expect mannered form and a refined interplay of quotations. Anton's Right Here is filmed contrarily to such expectations, this film is completely different. Cinematic means of expression serve here to reveal the very essence, to inquire into human nature and to present us with something we don't know about ourselves.« Alexander Sokurov

Monumentalen filmski portret stolnici Dragice Srzentić je stkan iz pogovorov, izjav in rekonstrukcij, animiranih podob, ki tu in tam nadomestijo fotografije. V Istri rojena lucidna gospa je po nenavadnem spletu naključju prisostvovala nizu ključnih dogodkov, ki so oblikovali usodo Jugoslavije v obdobju pred in med drugo svetovno vojno ter po njej. Junakinjina neverjetna življenjska zgodba tako odstira že pozabljljene trenutke balkanske zgodovine ter preiskuje labirinte intelektualnega in političnega življenja osmih držav in sistemov, ki jih je zamenjala.

Pro srečanje med Žilnikom in imponantno damo se je odvilo pred dvajsetimi leti na nekem zboru časopisa Ženska danes. Povedala mu je, da je videla nekaj njegovih filmov in da jo njegovo delo zanima ter omenila svojo dramatično življenjsko zgodbo. Kot vabo mu je navrgla spomine in poznanstva iz levičarskih intelektualnih krogov v 30. letih in predlagala, da bi se srečala v mirnejših časih, saj je po informbiroju več let preživel v zaporu kot administrativna kaznjenka in je še zmeraj pod razmeroma velikim pritiskom ... Nato se mu je pred tremi leti oglasila po telefonu. »Mislim sem si, dobro, to je stara, 98-, 99-letna ženska. In rekel sem si, da jo bom šel obiskat pred koncem življenja. Toda že po petih minutah pogovora sem ugotovil, da ima čudovit spomin in zelo zanimivo energijo. Iz tega, kako se spominja stvari, veje nekakšen magnetizem. S seboj prinaša nekaj, kar je zelo neznačilno za ves postkomunistični prostor, namreč – ne popravlja svojih spominov in ne ustvarja sodobne različice nekdajšnjih časov, kar je danes precej pogosta praksa. Mislim predvsem na tiste ljudi, ki so bili komunisti in trdijo, da so se kar najstrezje zavzemali za večstrankarski sistem, in tiste, ki so veliko pretrpeli zaradi informbiroja, trdijo pa, da se je to zgodilo zaradi ljubezni do pravoslavne Rusije, pravoslavne cerkve itd. Dragica ob omembri vsega tega le zamahne z roko in reče, da nas to potvarjanje in laganje uničuje ter враča v tematne čase, kot da ostajamo ves čas na začetku. To me je zelo pritegnilo in ponudil sem se, da bi naredil njen filmski portret. Odvrnila je: »Želimir, ti boš to težko razumel, ker pripadaš novi generaciji, ki ne more razumeti vere v svet in boljše življenje, ki smo ga vsi pričakovali od levičarskih idej.« Žilnik jo je nato povabil na premiero Stare šole kapitalizma. Po ogledu se je obrnila nanj z besedami: »Pa dajva, potrudiva se.« In kmalu je z maloštevilno snemalno ekipo letela v Moskvo, ki je ni videla 64 let ...

ŽELIMIR ŽILNIK

Rojen leta 1942 v Nišu. Velja za enega najbolj produktivnih, kritičnih in odmevnih filmskih ustvarjalcev s področja nekdanje Jugoslavije. Mednarodni sloves je pozel že s kultnim prvencem Zgodnja dela (Rani radovi, 1969). V sedemdesetih letih za kratek čas deluje v Nemčiji. Zaznamuje ga povsem samosvoja filmska govorica, hibrid dokumentarnega in igranega. Njegov opus šteje 49 del.

Born in 1942 in Niš. He is considered one of the most productive, critical and resonating filmmakers in the region of former Yugoslavia. He received international acclaim already with his cult debut Early Works (Rani radovi, 1969). In the '70 he briefly works in Germany. He developed quite unique film language, a hybrid of documentary and fiction film. His oeuvre consists of 49 works.

A monumental film portrait of the hundred-year-old Dragica Srzentić is composed of conversations, statements, reconstructions and animated images that are sometimes replaced by photos. Through a unique chain of circumstances, this sharp-witted lady, born in Istria, was present at a series of key events that shaped the fate of Yugoslavia in the period before, during and after WWII. The heroine's incredible life story thus reveals already forgotten moments of Balkan history and examines the labyrinths of the intellectual and political life of the eight states and systems she lived in.

Žilnik first met this fascinating woman 20 years ago at a meeting of the magazine Ženska danes (Woman Today). She approached him by saying she had seen a few of his films and was interested in his work. She mentioned her dramatic life story and as bait threw in a few memories and dropped a few names from the leftist intellectual circles of the 1930s, suggesting they should meet in more peaceful times, for she had spent several years in prison as an administrative convict after the Informbiro period and was still under relatively strong pressure... Then, three years ago, she telephoned him. »I thought to myself: 'Fine, she's a 98- or 99-year-old woman.' And I said to myself I'd go visit her before the end of her life. But after only five minutes of talking to her, I found she had an amazing memory and very interesting energy. There is a sort of magnetism coming from the way she remembers things. She brings something that is very uncharacteristic for the entire post-communist space – she does not revise her memories nor does she create a contemporary variant of past times, which is a very common practice nowadays. I'm thinking especially of former communists who claim that they most adamantly advocated the multi-party system and those who suffered immensely during the Informbiro period but claim that it was because of their love for Orthodox Russia and the Orthodox Church, etc. Dragica merely waves her hand at the mention of this, saying that all this fabrication and lying is ruining us, taking us back to the dark times, making it seem as if we have remained at the beginning the entire time. I was fascinated and I offered to make her film portrait. She responded: 'Želimir, it will be difficult for you to understand because you belong to the new generation that cannot understand the belief in the world and the better life that we all expected from leftist ideas.' Žilnik then invited her to the opening of The Old School of Capitalism. After the film, she approached him again, saying: 'Let's do it, let's make an effort.' Soon after, with a small film crew, she was on a plane to Moscow, which she hadn't seen for 64 years...

Ko so v Madridu zavrele ulice, je bil tam Sylvain George s svojo kamero. Proteste proti lokalnim oblastem, proteste proti varčevalnim ukrepom, proteste proti globalnemu kapitalizmu je prepoznal kot razredni boj, celo kot zametke revolucije, in posnel natančno, vestno, metodično kroniko dogajanja. Posnetega in zmontiranega materiala nato ni označil za (dokumentarni) film, marveč je vsemu skupaj nadel nalepko filmskega obzornika in se tako umestil v tradicijo tiste filmske prakse, ki naj bi aktualnost predvsem prenašala, na hiper način, brez poseganja vanjo in interpretiranja. Končni rezultat se vendarle umesti nekam drugam, predvsem v tradicijo protestne poezije, iskrene in trmaste, tokrat v obliki filma.

»Ta film je filmski obzornik. Filmski obzornik, ki predstavlja nekaj pogledov, prizorov, trenutkov iz razrednega boja v Madridu. Špansko protestniško gibanje 15. maj je eno najpomembnejših tovrstnih gibanj z začetka 21. stoletja. Gre za globok val, ki ga hranična tišina in beda številnih generacij. Globok val, ki se razliva prek političnih in zgodovinskih meja in ki operira z idejami ter koncepti, za katere se je že zdelo, da so pozabljeni: demos, logos, revolucija ... Na madridskem trgu Puerta del Sol se 15. maja preteklost in prihodnost srečata v sedanjosti, da bi se vsi skupaj iznašli na novo. Kot sončnice k soncu se države Evrope in sveta obrnejo k Madridu.« Sylvain George

»Če je srce režiserja na strani žrtev kolesja, ki premleva brezdomna telesa 'tujcev', je njegova solidarnost s protestniki – delavci, študenti, avtonomisti, s tujci v lastni državi – zaveza resničnega dokumentarista: dolžan je biti tudi tam, pozorno gledati in poslušati, da bo sam pri sebi in tudi za nas razumel, kaj je šlo narobe, da bo torej drugič šlo narobe na drugačen, nemara manj napačen način.« Nil Baskar

Sylvain George je študiral filozofijo, politične vede in gledališče. Je pesnik, filozof in filmaš, ki se v svojih delih na radikalni način spopada z nevralgičnimi točkami razkrajočega se globalnega kapitalizma. Njegov politični in filozofska angažma je zaznamovala zlasti misel Walterja Benjamina. Podpisuje dolgo vrsto kratkih in štiri celovečerne filme. Slovenska kinoteka je januarja 2011 pripravila popolno retrospektivo njegovih do takrat posnetih del.

Studied philosophy, political sciences and theatre. He is a poet, a philosopher and a filmmaker whose films confront the hot spots of disintegrating global capitalism in a radical way. His political and philosophical engagement has been marked above all by Walter Benjamin's thought. He has made a number of short films and four feature-length ones. In January 2011, the Slovenian Cinematheque hosted a complete retrospective of his works at the time.

When people in Madrid took to the streets, Sylvain George was there with his camera. He recognised the protests against local authorities, austerity measures and global capitalism as a class struggle, as the germs of a revolution even, and filmed a precise, conscientious, methodical chronicle of events. He did not characterise the filmed and edited material as a (documentary) film, but labelled it a film newsreel, thus placing himself in the tradition of a film practice that allegedly conveys current affairs instantaneously, without any intervention or interpretation. The end result nevertheless belongs somewhere else, above all to the tradition of protest poetry, honest and headstrong, this time in the shape of a film.

»This film is a newsreel. A newsreel which presents some views, scenes and moments of the class struggle in Madrid. The 'Movimiento 15-M' is the first major 'movement' at the beginning of the 21st century. A deep wave that carries the silence and misery of many generations. A deep wave, trans-border and trans-historical, which reactivates and works ideas and concepts that were long thought to have been forgotten: demos, logos, revolution... Plaza Puerta del Sol, 15-M, past and future meet in the present, where they are produced and incessantly reinvented. Like flowers towards the sun, the countries of Europe and the world have turned towards Madrid.« Sylvain George

»If the director's heart is on the side of the victims of the wheelwork grinding the homeless bodies of 'foreigners', his solidarity with the protesters - workers, students, autonomists, foreigners in his own country - is the commitment of a real documentarian: it is his duty to be there, too, carefully observing and listening, so he can understand, for himself and for us, what has gone wrong, so that next time it will go wrong in a different, perhaps less erroneous way.« Nil Baskar

Leta 2011 je Sylvain George dokončal film Naj počivajo v uporu (Figure vojne I.) (Qu'ils reposent en revolte (Des figures de guerres I)). Filmski esej, sestavljen iz fragmentov, ki se nanašajo drug na drugega, trkajo drug ob drugega, ustvarjajo multiple mreže prostorov in časov. Nazoren prikaz treh let (2007–2010) življenjskih pogojev migrantov v Calaisu. Obenem tudi prikaz, kako politike tako imenovanega »administriranega sveta« (lahko tudi moderne policijske države) segajo onstran zakona in osvetljujejo določene šive, zabrisane vmesne prostore med izjemo in pravilom. Podoba sveta, v katerem je posameznik (predvsem, ne pa tudi izključno »porazenec«: begunec, migrant, nezaposlen, narkoman, mladenič iz predmestja) obravnavan kot kriminalec, oropan svojih elementarnih pravic, reduciran na svoje »golo telo«, svoje »golo življenje«. Iz materiala, triletnih okruškov Figur vojne, ki jih ni uporabil v tem epu, je Sylvain George zdaj sestavil lirične, pa zato nič manj urgente Okruške. Kri je še vedno črna, zgodba še vedno traja, vendar je tokrat izpovedana praktično brez besed, predvsem s pomočjo podobe, montaže, zvoka, glasbe.

»Okruški glasov, smeha in srda. Odlomki besed, podob in spominov. Besede od daleč in bližu, od včeraj in danes. Zavijanje vetra, krvavi poljub sonca z obzorjem. Policijske racije, vojščaki države, nepravična sodišča. Zemljevid nasilja, ki se izvaja nad migranti. Ponovitev kolonializma. Nesprejemljivost 'sveta, kakršen je'.« Sylvain George

»Pišem vam iz kotička pekla, prebičanega od vetrov in morja in krikov galebov, ki jih trgajo kaplje dežja – ali pa so to nočne ptice, ki letijo vse više, proti megljam in obronkom, in se vseeno vedno znova izgubijo. Pišem vam iz mesta pobegov, kjer tavam in se pritajim, kajti vedno moram oditi, vedno tja, v brezglavem teku, do poslednjega diha.« Temesghen, eritrejski migrant, ki je obtičal v Calaisu

»Obstaja neka temeljna razlika med ustvarjalci, ki v občinstvo polagajo svoja pričakovanja, in tistimi, ki učinek mislijo. Ključna je pozicija samega režisera in njegov prihod k tistem, kar želi posneti; gre za prevod režiserjevega zanimanja za svet in odnosa do sveta v izdelek, ki ni a priori subverziven in radikalnen. Pravzaprav gre v večini primerov filmov, za katere je mogoče reči, da so radikalni, za skromen obrat v percepциji tistega, ki kaže, za njegovo zavest o tem, kakšne so možnosti razporeditve sveta z nekim orodjem. Te možnosti so v polju vsake umetniške vrsti najbrž neskončne.« Ivana Novak

Sylvain George je študiral filozofijo, politične vede in gledališče. In January 2011, the Slovenian Cinematheque hosted a complete retrospective of his works at the time.

In 2011, Sylvain George finished his May They Rest in Revolt (Figures of Wars I), a film essay composed of fragments that refer to each other, collide, creating multiple networks of space and time. This film shows the living conditions of migrants in Calais over a period of three years (2007–2010). At the same time, it shows how the policies of the so-called »administrated world« (or should we say, modern police states?) go beyond the law and highlight certain sutures, blurred spaces between the exception and the rule. An image of the world in which individuals (mostly, but not only, the »defeated ones«: refugees, immigrants, the unemployed, drug-addicts, the youth from the suburbs) are treated as criminals, deprived of their elemental rights, reduced to their »bare body«, or their »bare life«. From the footage he did not use in this epic film, Sylvain George assembled the lyrical, but no less urgent Fragments. The blood is still black, the story continues, but this time it is told practically without any words, primarily through images, editing, sounds and music.

»Fragments of voices, laughter and rage; snatches of words, images and memory; the words near and far, from yesterday, from today; the gusts of wind, the gesture of the sun at sunset, blood-red reflections; police raids, warrior processions, courts of injustice... A map of the violence inflicted on migrants, the repetition of colonialism, and the unacceptability of the 'world as it is'.« Sylvain George

»I'm writing to you from the corner of hell whipped by the winds and the sea and seagull cries broken by raindrops – or is it the night birds soaring higher and higher towards the mists and fringes, losing their way again and again all the same. I'm writing to you from the place of runaways, where I wander and lie low because I always have to leave, always thither, running headlong to the last breath.« Temesghen, Eritrean migrant stuck at Calais

»There is a fundamental difference between artists who place their expectations in the audience and those who reflect on the effect. What is crucial is the director's position and their approach to what they want to film; it is a matter of the director's interest in the world and their relation to it being translated into a product that is not a priori subversive or radical. Most films that can be said to be radical effect a small turn in the perception of the presenter, in their awareness about the possibilities of arranging the world with a tool. In the field of every art form, these possibilities are probably infinite.« Ivana Novak

Film Pismo očetu govori o odnosu med očetom in sinom ter dolgih letih njunih nakopičenih težav v komunikaciji. Sin, 44-letni Milivoj, se ne more znebiti strahu, da je zvesta kopija svojega očeta, 70-letnega Mateja, in da je očetovo življenje projekcija njegove prihodnosti. Da bi dokazal svojo večvrednost, z amatersko kamero posname videopismo, s katerim želi očeta kompromitirati in dokazati, da je sam neprimerno boljši človek. Oče se brani pred obtožbami iz sinovega pisma in svoja dejanja opravičuje pred bližnjimi, sosedji, prijatelji.

Trinajsto prase in hkrati veliki zmagovalec lanskoletnega puljskega festivala je prepričljiva zgodba o očetu in sinu v patriarchalnem svetu, v katerem nežnost vzbuja srh in prezir.

»Projekt Pismo očetu je režijska improvizacija, ki temelji na določeni temi in potem na dokumentiraju nastopa igralcev. Pozneje smo improvizacije uredili v parallele prizore sinovih obtožb in očetovih zagovorov. To je platforma prvih dveh tretjin filma, zaključna tretjina uprizori njuno srečanje. Režijskemu pristopu so na začetku botrovali skromni produkcijski pogoji, vendar pa skromnosti projekta nisem hotel razkazovati, hotel sem narediti prepričljivigrani film, posnet v dokumentarističnem slogu.« Damir Čučić

»Vse se je začelo z videom, ki smo ga posneli v Samoborju. Edini denar, ki smo ga dobili na natečaju, je bil namenjen kratkemu igrano-dokumentarnemu eksperimentalnemu filmu, ki naj bi trajal petindvajset minut. Jaz naj bi bil ujet v hiši zaradi nekakšne elementarne nesreče in iz te hiše naj ne bi prišel živ. Zamislili smo si, da v obliki video zapisa nagovarjam svoje najdražje, zato sem nagovarjal prijatelje, hčer, sestro, na koncu dneva pa smo prišli do mojega starega. Čučić je zavohal, da se tu skriva nekaj norega, in ko je ugasnil kamero, mi je rekel: 'Beader, prosim te, lahko nadaljuješ samo s starim?' Intuitivno sem vedel, kam to pelje. Devetdeset odstotkov mojih kolegov ne bi nadaljevalo. /.../ Zgodba je popolnoma avtentična, oče mi je res umrl na rokah, medtem ko sem mu bral monografijo Hajduka, kar omenimo v filmu. Novinarji so me spraševali tista standardna, neumna vprašanja: ali gre za mojo izpoved pred dokumentarno kamero in podobno, meni pa se zdi že neumno pojasnjevati, da je vse to igrat, da je to film. Treba je igrati, pa čeprav govorim svojo zgodbo. Pred kamero sem sam petindvajset minut. Veste, kako težko je to? Vem, da je to moja najboljša filmska vloga in da je mogoče, da bo to moja najboljša vloga v življenju.« Milivoj Beader

DAMIR ČUČIĆ

Leta 1972 rojeni Damir Čučić je režiral več kot 20 dokumentarcev, 12 eksperimentalnih filmov in dva kratka filma. Osvojil je 17 nacionalnih in mednarodnih filmskih nagrad, njegovi filmi pa so bili prikazani na več kot 130 festivalih v 40 državah na skoraj vseh celinah. Damir Čučić je ustanovil Mikrokino, verigo kinematografov, ki se posvečajo predvajanju kratkih filmov. Pismo očetu je njegov prvi celovečerni igralni film. Leta 2012 je bil prikazan na filmskem festivalu v Pulu, kjer je prejel več nagrad, med drugim zlato areno za najboljši film.

Born 1972, has directed more than 20 documentaries, 12 experimental films and two short films. He is the winner of 17 national and international film awards and his films have been shown at over 130 festivals in 40 countries on almost every continent. He is the founder of Mikrokino, a chain of movie theatres dedicated to short film screenings. A Letter to My Father is his first feature film, and was screened at Pula Film Festival 2012 in Croatia, where it won several awards, among others the Grand Golden Arena for best film.

A Letter to My Father deals with the relationship of a father and son, questioning years and layers of communication problems. Son Milivoj (44) cannot get rid of the fear that he is his father's Mate (70) carbon copy and that his father's life is a projection of his future. Desire to prove himself superior drives the son to make an amateur video compromising his father and proving that he is a much better person than his father. Father starts defending himself from the accusations presented in son's video letter, justifying his acts to the surrounding, neighbours, friends. The outsider that won the award for best film at last year's edition of the Pula Film Festival is a convincing story about a father and son in a patriarchal world in which tenderness makes one shudder and arouses contempt.

»The entire project of the film A Letter to Dad was a directing improvisation based on a set theme and documentation of actors' performances. Subsequent improvisations are organized as parallel sequences of son's accusations and father's defences, and they represent a platform for the first two thirds of the film. The final part features their encounter. Directorial approach was a result of initially modest production conditions. However, the director's intention was not to showcase the modesty of the project, but rather to make an impressive feature film shot in the manner of a documentary.« Damir Čučić

»It all started with the video we made in Samobor. The only money we got by winning a tender was intended for a 25-minute short docufiction experimental film. I was supposed to be trapped in a house due to a natural disaster and was not supposed to come out of it alive. The idea was to address my nearest and dearest in the form of a video, so I addressed my friends, my daughter, my sister and at the end of the day we came to my old man. Čučić smelled that there was something crazy there and when he turned off the camera, he said: 'Beader, could you please continue just with the old man?' I intuitively knew where this was going. /.../ The story is entirely authentic; my father really did die in my arms while I read to him from the book about Hajduk, which is mentioned in the film. The journalists asked me the standard, stupid questions: is it my confession in front of a documentary camera and the like, and I find it stupid to have to explain that it's all acting, that it's a film. I have to act even if I'm telling my story. I'm alone in front of the camera for 25 minutes. Do you know how hard that is? I know this has been my best role on film and it will possibly be the best role in my life.« Milivoj Beader

V Šarmerje novopečenega japonskega režiserja Ninomiye Ryutare vstopimo skozi dolg, statičen kader sobe za odmor v popravljalnici prodajalnih avtomatov, kjer kadita Tane in Oshima. V kader kmalu začnejo kapljati še drugi sodelavci. Pogovor: groza javnih stranišč in ženske. V Šarmerjih se na prvi pogled ne zgodi veliko: nekaj utrinkov iz življenja skupine mladih japonskih delavcev, ki dneve preživljajo v popravljalnici, se kratkočasijo z igranjem nogometna pustem industrijskem dvorišču in banalnimi pogovori o tem ali onem ... Med njimi izstopa redkobesedni samotar Yoda, najnižji po rangu v delavnici, ki nemo prenaša vsakodnevno nadlegovanje in ponizevanje nadrejenega Takahashija. Edini, ki se mu skuša – neuspešno – nekoliko približati, je ambivalentni Sakata (Ryutaro). Yodu se dokončno 'odpelige' šele po prekrokanji noči in bežnem spolnem aktu s prijateljico, ko sredi noči v nekem podhodu sreča Sakato, ki mu nič hudega sluteč navrže, da je »ubogi fant«.

Leta 1977 je bil na Japonskem ustanovljen filmski festival PIA. Zgradil si je sloves festivala, ki se ne zadovolji zgolj s prikazovanjem filmov, temveč jih preko nagrad, za katere se s svojimi projekti potegujejo nadrebudni neuveljavljeni filmaři, tudi ustvarja. Ninomiya Ryutaro je tako pod produksijskim okriljem festivala PIA v popolni ustvarjalni svobodi in z omejenimi finančnimi sredstvi zrežiral, spisal in zmontiral Šarmerje, povrh vsega pa v njih odigral še eno izmed vodilnih vlog. Hiperrealistični portret japonske delavske mladine, ki z eno nogo stoji v svetu odraslih, z drugo pa še vedno v srednješolski mentaliteti, je poln samonanašajočega črnega humorja in zbadljivih, 'organских' dialogov. Ryutaro, ki ima dobro oko za uprizarjanje značajskih posebnosti svojih protagonistov, atmosfere in subtilnih emocij, je scenarij napisal z mislio na igralsko zasedbo; ta pa zaradi oblikovne skoposti filma (serija dolgih statičnih kadrov, snemanih iz roke) na svojih plečih nosi tudi večji del njegove teže.

NINOMIYA RYUTARO

Rojen leta 1986 na Japonskem. Po enem letu študija filmske produkcije se odloči, da se bo izšolal za igralca. Medtem piše in režira. Šarmerji (Miryoku no ningēn, 2012) so njegov prvi celovečer, pred tem pa je posnel še kratkometražec Enjoy 'It' (2011).

Born in 1986, Japan. Studied production for a year at film school, after which he decided to pursue an acting career. In the meantime, he has been writing and directing, though he also plays roles in his own films.

We enter The Charm of Others by fledgling Japanese director Ninomiya Ryutaro through a static long take of the break-room in a vending machine repair shop where we see Tane and Oshima smoking. Soon, other co-workers start dropping into the shot. Conversation topic: the horror of public toilets and women. At first sight, not much seems to happen in The Charm of Others: we get some glimpses into the life of a group of young Japanese workers who spend their days in the repair shop and pass the time by playing football in a desolate industrial yard and engaging in banal conversations about this and that... Yoda, a taciturn loner and the lowest-ranking worker in the shop, who silently endures the everyday harassment and humiliation by his superior Takahashi, stands out. The only one who tries – unsuccessfully – to get closer to him is the ambivalent Sakata (Ryutaro). Yoda finally »loses it« only after a night of drinking and a casual sex encounter with his friend when, in a subway in the middle of the night, he meets Sakata, who unsuspectingly calls him a »poor lad«.

In 1977, the PIA Film Festival was established in Japan. It has earned renown as a festival that is not satisfied with only screening films, but as one which, through its awards, which promising non-established filmmakers compete for, also creates them. Thus, under the PIA production wing, Ninomiya Ryutaro had complete creative freedom and limited funds to direct, write and edit The Charm of Others. On top of all that, he also played one of the leading roles. This hyper-realistic portrait of Japanese working youth with one foot in the world of grown-ups and the other still in high-school mentality is full of self-referring black humour and biting »organic« dialogues. Ryutaro, who has an eye for representing the character traits of his protagonists, atmosphere and subtle emotions, wrote the script with the cast in mind; due to the formal simplicity of the film (a series of static long takes filmed with a hand-held camera), the latter also carries most of its weight.

Eden najbolj vizualno osupljivih, kinetičnih filmov vseh časov: divji avtomobilski juriš po polpraznih jutranjih ulicah Pariza, posnet v enem kadru, v prvi osebi, brez posebnih učinkov, kakopak ilegalno, v imenu ljubezni!

»[Claude Lelouch] Je mož, ki zelo nerad zamuja. Priznava, da je skoraj kompulziven, ko pride do točnosti. Prav v tistem času je imel zelo neprjetno izkušnjo pri delu na filmu, saj je glavna igralka nenehno zamujala. Vznemirjala ga je misel na napetost in konflikt, ko poskuša človek nekam priti ob času. Okoliščine so se ustvarile po koncu snemanja filma pred Bil je zmenek. Po snemanju mu je ostalo 300 metrov filma, kar je približno 9 minut. Vse se je zgodilo precej hitro – mislil si je, zlomka, kamero bomo pač pritrdirili na sprednji del avta in poskušali nekam priti točno.« Richard Symons, Spirit Level Film

CLAUDE LELOUCH

Rojen 1937. Čeprav ga letnik rojstva umešča v generacijo, ki je konec petdesetih in v začetku šestdesetih let prejšnjega stoletja spločla znameniti francoski novi val, je Lelouch vse od svojega celovečernega prvanca iz leta 1960 ubiral povsem samosvoje stežice. Starih pravil osvobojeno estetiko novega vala je zvito kržal z melodramatičnimi nastavki, lahkočnimi zgodbami, velimi plani priljubljenih zvezd, popularnimi melodijami, in tako ustvaril tisti tip francoskega kina, ob katerem so svojčas vzdihovale naše babice in mame.

Born in 1937. Although this means he belongs to the generation that produced the famous French New Wave at the end of the 1950s and beginning of the 1960s, Lelouch has tread his own unique path ever since his debut feature in 1960. He artfully crossed the New Wave aesthetics liberated from the old rules with melodramatic plotlines, light-hearted stories, close-ups of popular stars and popular melodies, thus creating the type of French cinema that made our grandmothers and mothers sigh.

One of the most visually astounding, kinetic films of all times: a wild car rush through the half-empty morning streets of Paris, shot in one take, in first person, without special effects, illegally, of course, in the name of love!

»C'était un Cinema!« Jean-Michel Gentil, Les images perdues

»He's [Claude Lelouch] a very punctual man. He would admit to being almost compulsive about punctuality. He'd just had a very frustrating experience working on a film, where his main actress was always late. He was intrigued by the tension and conflict of trying to get somewhere on time. The wherewithal happened at the end of shooting the feature film he finished just before Rendezvous. He had a 1000ft of film left after that shoot, which is roughly 9-minutes of film. It all came together quite quickly - he thought, bollocks, we'll just stick the camera on the front of the car, and try to get somewhere on time.« Richard Symons, Spirit Level Films

Večkrat nagrjeni Jaz sem mikro mladih indijskih avtoric Shumone Goel in Shai Heredie je eksperimentalna eseistična filmska miniatura, ki se poklanja mediju filma, kot osrednjo temo pa premišljuje postopno izginjanje indijskega neodvisnega filma. »Jaz sem mikro je iskren portret filma, ki si prizadeva delati zunaj industrijske ekonomike. Poetične besede Kamala Swaroopa ne opisujejo le njegovih izkušenj pri ustvarjanju eksperimentalnih filmov, pač pa nudijo tudi vpogled v rastoče gibanje upora proti današnjemu indijskemu komercialnemu filmu.« Shumona Goel in Shai Heredia

Film zavzema prizorišče propadle in zapušcene tovarne National Instruments (NIL) Ltd. v Jadavpuru v Kalkuti. Tovarna je proizvajala National 35, edino 35-milimetrsko kamero, ki so jo kdaj izdelovali v Indiji. Čeprav je bil sloves kamere National 35 kratkotrajne narave, je tovarna odigrala pomembno vlogo v filmski zgodovini Indije.

V mehki črno-beli fotografiji z umirjenim prečesavanjem pročelij in iskanjem kompozicij znotraj prostorov zapušcene tovarne ter počivanjem kamere na posameznih zaprašenih predmetih avtorici ustvarita memento mori samega okolja, obenem pa tudi filmske kulture, ki počasi izginja.

»Z Jaz sem mikro sva hoteli ustvariti film o posameznem umetniku, ki poskuša snemati filme v svetu, pa mu to pogosto ne uspe. Ironija pri tem je bila, da se je, ko sva leta 2012 prišli do točke izdelave kopij za Jaz sem mikro, laboratorij, v katerem sva delali, zaprl. Bolj nedavno so ARRI, Panavision in Aaton opustili proizvodnjo kamер. Kljub temu verjameva, da bodo vedno obstajali filmlarji, ki bodo našli pot, ker je film zanje absolutno nujen ozioroma pomemben: to je bistveni film.« Shumona Goel in Shai Heredia

SHUMONA GOEL

Leta 1995 je diplomirala iz filmskih študij na Bard Collegeu, leta 1999 pa magistrirala iz azijske kinematografije na Šoli za orientalske in afriške študije. Njeni filmi so bili prikazani na številnih festivalih. Od leta 2008 raziskuje razširjene oblike filma. Shumona še posebej rada dela z nizkotehnološkimi, zastarelimi formati, kot so videokasete in diapozitivi.

Received a BA in film from Bard College in 1995. She received an MA in Asian Cinema from the School of Oriental and African Studies in 1999. Her films have been screened at numerous film festivals and since 2008 she has been exploring expanded forms of cinema. Shumona especially enjoys working with low-tech, outdated formats such as VHS cassettes and slide projections.

The multi-award-winning I Am Micro by two young Indian filmmakers, Shumona Goel and Shai Heredia, is an experimental essayistic film miniature that pays tribute to the medium of film while reflecting on the gradual disappearance of Indian independent cinema. »I Am Micro is a heartfelt portrait of a filmmaker struggling to work outside industry economics. Kamal Swaroop's poetic voiceover not only describes his own experiences in experimental filmmaking but also serves as a window into a growing movement to resist commercial Indian cinema today.« Shumona Goel and Shai Heredia
The film is set at National Instruments (NIL) Ltd., a defunct and derelict factory in Jadavpur, Kolkata. The factory produced National 35, the only 35 mm camera ever to be produced in India. Although the camera's repute was short-lived, the factory played an important role in the history of Indian cinema. With soft black-and-white cinematography and a measured survey of the facades, the search for compositions within the derelict factory and the focus on dusty objects, the two filmmakers create a memento mori not only of the environment itself, but also, at the same time, of the slowly disappearing film culture as well.

SHAI HEREDIA

Režiserka in filmska kuratorka. Leta 2003 je v Mumbaiju ustanovila mednarodni festival indijskega eksperimentalnega filma Experiments, ki se je z leti hitro razvil v pomemben mednarodni forum za umetniške filme in video. Prav tako je pripravila programe eksperimentalnih filmov za različne festivalne. Trenutno je programska vodja Indijske fundacije za umetnost v Bangalore.

A filmmaker and curator of film art. She founded Experiments - the international festival for experimental cinema in India. Over the years, she has rapidly developed the festival into a significant international forum for artists' film and video. Shai has also curated experimental film programmes for various film festivals. She is currently a Programme Executive at the India Foundation for the Arts, Bangalore.

»With I Am Micro, we wanted to make a film about the individual artist trying to make films in the world and often failing. It is ironic that by the time we ended up printing I Am Micro in 2012, the labs we were working in had shut down. More recently, ARRI, Panavision, and Aaton have stopped making film cameras. And yet we believe that there will always be filmmakers who will find a way, because, for them, cinema is absolutely necessary, or important: it is essential cinema.« Shumona Goel and Shai Heredia

Odpor

Bržkone največji in najuglednejši festival kratkega filma, Mednarodni dnevi kratkega filma v Oberhausnu, že sedmo leto zapored potuje po izbranih svetovnih lokacijah in predstavlja jagodne izbore svojih sodobnih in zgodovinskih programov. Ključni med slednjimi je program 35-milimetrskih kopij subverzivnih filmov s skupnim naslovom Odpor. Politični filmi tega programa, narejeni med letoma 1961 in 2010, nas praviloma soočijo z izrazito neolepšanim pogledom na svet. Prvenstveno gre za dokumentarne filme najrazličnejših oblik (od »direktnega filma« do filmskega eseja), v katerih filmaři intervenirajo, protestirajo, se zoperstavljajo in zavzemajo za vrednote, kot so svoboda, človekove pravice ali golo življenje. Program je zasnovan kot potovanje v času in kot svojevrstna zgodovina festivala (in njegovega filmskega arhiva). Vsebuje nekatere izmed najpomembnejših političnih filmov vseh časov, ki so bili predvajani in so zmagovali v Oberhausnu.

Resistance

Probably the biggest and most eminent festival of short film in Oberhausen is traveling selected locations for the seventh consecutive year and presenting crème de la crème of their contemporary and historical programmes. The key one among these is the programme of 35mm prints of subversive films titled Resistance. The political films in this programme, ranging in date from 1961 to 2010, often present quite an unvarnished view of the world. In the primarily documentary works, which occupy a continuum from Direct Cinema to essay, filmmakers intervene, take a stand and protest on behalf of human rights, freedom and life itself. The programme is conceived as a journey through time, via the history of the festival (and its film archive). It includes some of the most important political works shown in Oberhausen and which won awards there.

Izvirno debelih pet ur trajajoča črno-bela mini televizijska serija, ki prikazuje nemoč posameznika v nepravični družbi, velja – celo po besedah Akija Kaurismäkija – za enega izmed največjih dosežkov finskega filma.

Olaf Möller, ki v zadnjem času (tako pri nas kot drugod po Evropi) nastopa kot pravi znanilec finskih filmskih zakladov, je Osem smrtonosnih strelov opredelil kot »mračno, surovo, brezkompromisno, neizprosno, nespravljivo in neutolažljivo mojstrovino«.

Z nastopom naturščikov in s humanistično neposrednostjo se film poklanja italijanskim neorealistom, z bližnjimi posnetki Eisensteinu. V svoji biti pa film Osem smrtonosnih strelov, ki surovo portretira stisko družine majhnega kmeta, predstavlja intimno, epsko, univerzalno tragedijo – po besedah Petra von Bagha: »zolajevsko upodobitev zapletenih razlogov življenja«. Niskanenova saga zabrišuje meje med resničnostjo in filmom. V osnovi temelji na resnični zgodbi: v majhni finski ruralni skupnosti je pozimi leta 1969 moški z imenom Tauno Pasanen v trenutkih brezupa ustrelil štiri policiste, ki so ga prišli aretrirat na dom. Po trinajstih letih zaporne kazni ga sam predsednik (po vsej verjetnosti zaradi zelo odmevnega Niskanenovega dela) pomilost. V filmu se ta moški imenuje Pasi, odigra pa ga sam Niskanen, ki tokrat nastopi tudi v vlogi scenarista. Scenarij je avtor zasnoval na podlagi intervjujev, ki jih je v zaporu opravil z obojenjem.

Z uporabo flashbacka se v štirih epizodah odvijejo dogodki, ki vodijo drug k drugemu – vse do tragičnega streljanja. Na samem začetku želi Pasi le skromno in mirno življenje s svojo družino, a časi in razmere postajajo vse bolj neizprosni. Turobni prizori počasi in neusmiljeno zarisujejo Pasijevu podjarmljenje alkoholu in rezko odražajo njegovo propadanje. Z vsakim prizorom se stanje poslabšuje, tegobe in revščina se poglabljajo, razpadati začne tudi družina.

»Ta film ne trdi, da poustvarja resnični dogodek, čeprav nekateri pomembni vidiki zgodbe temeljijo na njem. To je resnica, ki sem jo, rojen v tem okolju, sam videl in izkusil.« Mikko Niskanen

MIKKO NISKANEN

Rodil se je v Helsinki, kjer je tudi umrl (1929–1990). Bil je režiser, scenarist, producent in igralec. Njegova filmska kariera se je začela po študiju filmske režije v Moskvi. Že prvi celovečerec Pojat (1962) mu je (prvič) prinesel finsko nagrado Jussi za režijo; prejel jih je še pet. Po zgodnjih delih z vojno tematiko je bil nekaj let zaposlen na televiziji, nato pa se je vrnil k filmu in posnel tržno zelo uspešnega Käpy selän alla (Under Your Skin, 1966). Po nekaj slabše sprejetih filmih je znova zablestel z Eight Deadly Shots (1972), ki mu je poleg nagrade Jussi za režijo prinesel še eno za glavno moško vlogo.

Was born and died in Helsinki (1929–1990). He was a director, screenwriter, producer and actor. His film career began after his film directing studies in Moscow. His first feature Pojat (1962) already earned him a Jussi Award for best direction; he went on to win five more. After his early war-themed films, he worked for television for a few years, but then returned to filmmaking with his box-office hit Käpy selän alla (Under Your Skin, 1966). After a few poorly received films, he made his comeback with Eight Deadly Shots (1972), which brought him not only the Jussi Award for best direction, but also one for best leading actor.

The originally five-hour-long black-and-white TV mini-series depicting the powerlessness of an individual in an unjust society is – even according to Aki Kaurismäki – one of the greatest achievements of Finnish cinema.

Olaf Möller, who has lately been harbingering Finnish film treasures in Slovenia and elsewhere in Europe, described Eight Deadly Shots as a »raw, grim, uncompromising, unrelenting, unforgiving and non-consoling masterpiece.« With the use of non-actors and humanistic directness, the film pays tribute to the Italian neorealists, and with its close-ups, to Eisenstein. In its core, Eight Deadly Shots, which brutally portrays the plight of a small farmer's family, is an intimate, epic, universal tragedy ... »a Zola-esque depiction of life's complicated reasons« according to Peter von Bagh.

Niskanen's saga blurs the boundaries between reality and film. It is based on a real story: in the winter of 1969, in a small Finnish rural community, a man named Tauno Pasanen, in moments of hopelessness, shoots four policemen who have come to his home to arrest him. After 13 years in prison, he is pardoned by the President himself (probably due to Niskanen's resounding work). In the film, the man is named Pasi and is played by Niskanen himself, who also took on the role of screenwriter. He based the script on interviews he had made with the convict in prison.

Through the use of flashback, four episodes show the sequence of events that has led to the tragic shooting. At the beginning, all that Pasi wants is a modest and peaceful life with his family, but times and circumstances grow increasingly relentless. The grim scenes slowly and ruthlessly trace Pasi's subjugation to alcohol and poignantly reflect his deterioration. With every scene, his condition worsens, the hardships and the poverty deepen and, finally, his family begins to fall apart.

»This film does not claim to reproduce a real event, although the story is based on it in some important respects. This is the truth I have seen and experienced, borne myself in these surroundings.« Mikko Niskanen

V portretnem dokumentarno-kolažnem triptihu se veliki cinefil, filmski publicist in režiser Peter von Bagh poklanja izjemni avtorski figuri finskega filma – režiserju, igralcu in scenaristu Mikku Niskanenu. Mednarodni publiki slabo znan režiser sicer velja za enega največjih avtorjev generacije, ki je začela ustvarjati v šestdesetih, tesno za petami francoškemu novemu valu, s katerim je delila draž po prelomu s tradicionalno filmsko estetiko in poetiko, a zdi se, da se na zemljevid svetovnega filma šelev vpisuje.

Zgodbo Mikka Niskanena s pomenljivim naslovom Režiserjeva pot k človeškosti pripovedujejo osupljivi posnetki iz njegovega domačega arhiva, izrezani prizori iz njegovih filmov, izjave, pogovori s svojci, prijatelji in kolegi. Sprva intimen portret, ki v prvi epizodi razgrne Niskanenova otroška in mladostniška leta, pa kaj kmalu preraste v čustveno popotovanje skozi ključne trenutke sodobne finske zgodovine; v tej Finska kot država v tranziciji piše tragično usodo dostojanstvenemu podeželju v procesu izginjanja. Von Bagh v mogočnem portretu vzpostavi neposrednost in hkrati nežnost, s čimer se močno približa filmskemu stilu in samim filmom obravnavanega avtorja.

Niskanen velja za enega najsubtilnejših portretistov svojih dveh priljubljenih tem – izginjajočega finskega podeželja in mladosti, ki ju je prepletal v tridesetih letih svojega ustvarjanja. Zelo barvito je v svojih filmih zaridal tudi sodobno kulturo. Von Bagh se s podobami iz Niskanenovih filmov, ki jih spremja glas pripovedovalca v offu, sprehoji čez nekaj njegovih ključnih del, v samo središče – nameni ji celotno (drugo) epizodo triptiha – pa postavi najodmevnješo, surovo, neizprosno in neusmiljeno, prvotno dobrih pet ur trajajočo sago Osem smrtonosnih strelov, v kateri se zabrisujejo meje med režiserjevim življenjem in njegovo umetnostjo.

»Moj film, triurna Zgoda Mikka Niskanena, je poskus razumeti avtorja, ki je ustvaril mojstrovino: človeka velikih protislovij, ki je sposoben podpisati brezupa polne kot tudi zelo močne in intimne filme; umetniško življenje, ki se je začelo z velikimi načrti, doživel vrhunec z Osmimi smrtonosnimi streli (temu je posvečen drugi del mojega dokumentarca, ki govori o nastajanju filma) in potem utonilo v bridkosti; pa tudi zgodovino Finske in 62 let Niskanenovega življenja.« Peter von Bagh

PETER VON BAGH

Rojen leta 1943 v Helsinki. Filmski zgodovinar, filmski publicist in filmski režiser. Posnel je več kot 50 dokumentarcev in napisal okoli 20 knjig, bil je vodja Finskega filmskega arhiva. Odgovorni urednik revije Filmihullu in direktor Festivala polnočnega sonca v Sodankylä je tudi profesor zgodovine filma na Univerzi za umetnost in dizajn ter programski direktor festivala Il Cinema ritrovato v Bologni. Kot scenarist in režiser je sodeloval pri več filmih, med katerimi so najodmevnješi Summer revolt (1970), Najel sem plačanega morilca (I hired a contract killer, 1990) in Helsinki za vedno (Helsinki, ikuisesti, 2008).

1943, Helsinki, Finland. A film historian and a filmmaker. Also works for radio and television. He has made more than 50 documentaries, written around 20 books, and worked as the head of the Finnish Film Archive. Von Bagh is currently the editor-in-chief of Filmihullu magazine and the festival director of the Midnight Sun Film Festival in Sodankylä. In addition, he works as a professor of film history in the University of Art and Design in Helsinki and is the artistic director of Il Cinema Ritrovato in Bologna. He has worked on several films as a screenwriter and director, the most notable of which are Summer Revolt (1970), I Hired a Contract Killer (1990) and Helsinki, Forever (Helsinki, ikuisesti, 2008).

In this portrait triptych in the form of a documentary collage, the great cinephile, film critic, theoretician and director Peter von Bagh honours the exceptional authorial figure of Finnish cinema – director, actor and screenwriter Mikko Niskanen. The internationally little-known director is considered one of the greatest auteurs of the generation that started creating in the 1960s, closely following the French New Wave with which it shared the relish for breaking with traditional film aesthetics and poetics, yet seems only now is being put on the map of world cinema.

Mikko Niskanen's story with the telling title A Director's Journey to Humanness is told by the striking footage from his home archive, excerpts from his films, statements, and conversations with his family, friends and colleagues. The initially intimate portrait, whose first episode shows Niskanen's childhood and adolescence, soon grows into an emotional journey through the key moments of contemporary Finnish history; in its transition, the state of Finland has sealed the tragic fate of the dignified countryside in the process of its disappearance. In his powerful documentary, Von Bagh establishes a certain directness and at the same time a tenderness that very closely resemble the film style and the films of the portrayed director himself.

Niskanen is considered one of the most subtle portrayers of his two favourite themes – the disappearing Finnish countryside and youth, which he intertwined in his thirty-year-long career. His work also provides a very colourful delineation of contemporary culture. With images from Niskanen's films accompanied by a voiceover, Von Bagh goes through a few of Niskanen's key works, placing at the very centre – with the entire second episode of the triptych devoted to it – the resounding, raw, unrelenting, ruthless and originally five-hour-long saga Eight Deadly Shots, in which the boundaries between the director's life and his art are blurred.

»The three-hour Story of Mikko Niskanen is an effort to understand the artist behind a masterpiece: a man of deep contradictions, apt to sign hopeless films along with very strong and personal ones; an artistic life that starts with high hopes, culminates in Eight Deadly Shots (for which the second part, a »making of«, is dedicated), and descends into sorrow; a story of Finland as well, as of the 62 years of Niskanen's life.« Peter von Bagh

Skrivnostni, molčeči mladenič (Gosling) se čez dan udinja kot mehanik v neki zamazani losangeleški garaži in kot hollywoodski kaskader, čez noč pa kot voznik z domala nečloveškimi spretnostmi svoje usluge ponuja kriminalcem. Idilično, mirno trojno življenje se zaplete, ko se mladenič zaljubi v lepo sosedo (Mulligan) z majhnim otrokom in možem v zaporu.

Številni navdušeni kritiki in gledalci so Vozil označili za »eno največjih presenečenj leta 2011« in za »tarantinovski film«, vendar namesto postmodernega pastiša, citata in poklona filmu ceste, roparskemu filmu, filmu noir in filmu osemdesetih Refnu dejansko uspe ustvariti nekaj več: vse omenjene reference zlije v unikatno celoto, povsem nov model avtorskega žanrskega filma za novo tisočletje, ki hkrati šokira in zapeljuje s svojo iskreno mešanico surovosti in elegancije, eksistencializma in romantike. Vozil je pošast doktorja Frankensteinja, ki jo po koščkih sestavljajo Walter Hill, Monte Hellman, Richard Sarafian, Dennis Hopper, Robert Bresson, Nicholas Ray, Chris Petit, Wim Wenders, Clint Eastwood, Warren Oates in Steve McQueen, vendar je ta pošast brezšivna, shodila pa je v šoli Victorja Ericeja.

Vozil je bil posnet po istoimenskem romanu Jamesa Sallisa (ta je svoj hipni literarni kult iz leta 2005 lani že nadgradil z nadaljevanjem z nič manj lakoničnim naslovom Driven) in na ravni zgodbe, zapleta, deloma tudi na ravni dramaturgije ne prinaša bistvenih novosti. Temeljni presežek, pravzaprav samo jedro tega filma, se skriva v njegovi oblikah, v izključnem avtorskem podpisu Nicolasa Windinga Refna. Podobno kot pri njegovi prejšnji mojstrovini Božji bojevnik (Valhalla Rising, 2009) bi tako lahko rekli, da se zgodba (ali njeni zametki) šelev poraja iz filmske forme, iz zvočnega in vizualnega, se pravi tistega inherentno filmskega. Na soroden način presežek Sallisovega romana tiči skoraj ekskluzivno v njegovi formi, ki predstavlja krížanca med Carverjem, Bunkerjem in Chandlerjem. Tej sicer evidentni tezi pritrjuje tudi Refn sam, ki Vozil skopo in duhovito označuje za »zgodbo o človeku, ki se ponoči vozi naokrog in posluša pop pesmi.« Karakter glavnega junaka torej ne izhaja iz kakšne poglobljene psihologije, celo iz površne psihologije ne, marveč se v celoti poraja iz omenjenih nočnih melodij, ki ga obdajajo, iz monumentalnega načina, na katerega je posnet, iz neosmišljenega gona, ki ga peha iz prizora v prizor, iz zapleta v zaplet, iz ene prestave v drugo, do konca in naprej. To je stvar prave mitologije, brezčasnega filma za vsak trenutek.

NICOLAS WINDING REFN

Rojen leta 1970 v Kopenhagnu. Na lastno pest začne snemati kratke filme. Pri slabih štirindvajsetih letih Refn napiše scenarij in zrežira svoj celovečerni prvenec, ultra nasilno kriminalko Pusher (1996). Leta 2004 film dobi nadaljevanje in leta 2005 še tretji del. Svoj sloves Refn nepraklicno utrdi leta 2009, ko zrežira kar dva filma, mitičen, mističen, avantgarden zgodovinski ep Božji bojevnik (Valhalla Rising) in nič manj kontroverzno dramo Bronson.

Born in 1970 in Copenhagen. He started making short films on his own account. Aged only 24, he had written and directed his first feature, the extremely violent thriller Pusher (1996). In 2004, the film was followed up by Pusher II and in 2005 by Pusher III. Refn irrevocably confirmed his repute in 2009, when he directed two films: the mythical, mystical, avant-garde historical epic Valhalla Rising and the no less controversial drama Bronson.

By day, the mysterious, taciturn young man (Gosling) works as a Hollywood stuntman and a mechanic at a dirty Los Angeles garage, while by night, as a driver with inhuman skills, he lends his services to criminals. His idyllic, peaceful triple life becomes complicated when he falls in love with his beautiful neighbour (Mulligan) with a small child and a husband in prison. Numerous enthralled critics and viewers characterised Drive as »one of the greatest surprises of 2011« and a »Tarantino-esque film«. The latter notwithstanding, instead of a postmodern pastiche, a citation of and homage to road movies, heist films, film noir and 1980s cinema, Refn actually managed to create something more: he merged all the mentioned references into a unique whole, an entirely new model of auteur genre film for the new millennium, which simultaneously shocks and seduces with its honest mixture of brutality and elegance, existentialism and romance. Drive is Frankenstein's monster built piecewise by Walter Hill, Monte Hellman, Richard Sarafian, Dennis Hopper, Robert Bresson, Nicholas Ray, Chris Petit, Wim Wenders, Clint Eastwood, Warren Oates and Steve McQueen, but it is a seamless monster that learned to walk in Victor Erice's school.

Drive was adapted from the eponymous novel by James Sallis (who last year already followed up his instantaneous 2005 literary cult with a novel published under no less a laconic title, Driven). On the level of the story, the plot, and partly also the level of dramaturgy, it does not bring anything essentially new. The fundamental surplus, the very core of the film, lies in its form, in the exclusive authorial signature of Nicolas Winding Refn. As with his previous masterpiece Valhalla Rising (2009), we could again say that the story (or its germs) arise from the form, from the audiovisual, that is, the inherently filmic. Similarly, the surplus of Sallis' novel lies almost exclusively in its form, a crossbreed between Carver, Bunker and Chandler. This admittedly evident thesis is confirmed by Refn himself, who tersely and wittily characterises Drive as a story »about a man who drives around listening to pop songs at night.« In short, the main hero's character does not proceed from any in-depth psychology, or even a surface one, but is born entirely out of the mentioned night melodies that surround him, from the monumental way he is filmed, from the unexplained drive that propels him from scene to scene, from one story line to another, from one gear to another, to the end and beyond. It concerns real mythology, a timeless film for every moment.

Nizke dežele, visoka pričakovanja

Bi bila slaba hvala reči, da je Martijn Maria Smits najobetavnejši izmed mladih nizozemskih režiserjev? Navsezadnje se le malokdo spomni na Nizozemsko, kadar razpravljamo o stanju evropske kinematografije – letos je bil Borgman prvi nizozemski film, ki se je uvrstil v tekmovalni program Cannes od ... leta 1975!

Zakaj je tako? Nizozemska ima vendarle 17 milijonov prebivalcev in sedmi najvišji BDP na prebivalca na svetu. Romunija – ta neizčrpna filmska valilnica – ima zgorj 2 milijona prebivalcev več, a je na lestvici bruto domačega prihodka še le na 63. mestu. Morda imajo Nizozemci preprosto preveč denarja, njihovi filmarji pa so zadovoljni z ustvarjanjem prijetnih uspavank o tegobah srednjega razreda.

Tega nikakor ne moremo očitati Smitsu, saj se njegova maloštevilna filmografija (le štirje filmi od prvanca iz leta 2006 Otzenrath: Last Day.) vneto osredotoča na tiste člane nizozemske – in vsekakor belgijske – družbe, ki jim sreča ni naklonjena. Njegov v rotterdamski tekmovalni program uvrščeni C'est déjà l'été je posnet v valonskem postindustrijskem mestu Seraing, kjer sta večkrat nagrajena brata Dardenne ustvarila večino svojih filmov – neznan začetnik je za prehod na ta teritorij potreboval kar precej drznosti.

Smitsove filme označuje prav tovrstna drzna samozavest; dva srednjemetažna podviga, ki ju prikazujemo v Izoli, pa z nenavadno dolžino spretno ustvarita intenzivni miniaturi v maniri klasičnega socialno realističnega humanizma. In čeprav sta bila oba izvirno posneta za male ekrane – Antwerpen je na nacionalnem festivalu prejel nagrado za najboljši televizijski film –, ne učinkujeta prav nič šibkejše, ko ju gledamo na velikem platnu.

V filmu Antwerpen spremljamo par z enoletnim otrokom in njuno stisko po moževi izgubi zaposlitve. Moč nelagodje zbujojočih »prizorov iz zakonskega življenja«, posnetih v dokumentarističnem slogu, vseskozi stopnjuje silovita igra Thomasa Ryckewaerta in Daphné Verhelst – soustanoviteljev priznane radikalne belgijske gledališke skupine Wolff.

Smitsov talent za delo z igralci se spet pokaže v filmu Pod težo oblakov, v katerem Goldo de Leon, deklico, ki je komaj prilezla iz plenic, prepriča v pretresljiv in komaj verjeten igralski nastop. Smits nas v tej spretni variaciji Glorie Johna Cassavetesa in Julie Ericka Zonca pahne v nočni mori podobno življenje Elene (Tanja Otolski), mlade Ukrajinke, vpletene v neprijazen svet trgovine z belim blagom in prostitucije pod prisilo. Ko začne Elena skrbiti za prijateljčinega otroka, se sooči z grozljivo dilemo v komaj prepoznavni Nizozemski 21. stoletja, zaznamovani s surovimi družbenimi razlikami in prikritimi oblikami izkoriščanja, ki jih je tako enostavno spregledati in si pred njimi zatisniti oči. Toda ne tukaj, ne zdaj in nič več.

Low Countries, High Expectations

Is it »damning with faint praise« to say that Martijn Maria Smits is the most promising young Dutch director? After all, the cinema of the Netherlands is seldom near the tip of many tongues when the state of European film-making is being discussed – earlier this year Borgman was the first Dutch production selected for Cannes competition since... 1975!

Why should this be? After all, the Netherlands has 17 million people and the world's seventh-highest GDP per capita – that inexhaustible cinematic hotbed Romania has only two million more citizens but ranks a lowly 63rd in the GDP list. Maybe the Dutch simply have too much money, their cineastes content to churn out tasteful snoozers about Middle Class woes.

Such accusations can never be levelled at Smits, whose small filmography (just four pictures since his 2006 debut Otzenrath: Last Day) fiercely concentrates on the least fortunate members of Dutch – and indeed Belgian – society. His Rotterdam-competing C'est déjà l'été was made in Wallonia's post-industrial town Seraing, where the award-laden Dardenne brothers shoot most of their movies – for an unknown newcomer to 'trespass' onto that turf took chutzpah aplenty.

Smits' films are marked by exactly that kind of bold confidence, and the two mid-length enterprises presented here in Izola use unorthodox running-times to craft intense miniatures of classic social-realistic humanism. And while both were originally made for the small screen – Anvers was named Best TV Film at the national film-festival – they lose no ounce of impact in a cinematic context.

In Anvers we follow a couple with a one-year-old child, struggling to cope after the husband loses his job. Shot in documentary style, these discomfiting 'scenes from a marriage' are consistently elevated by powerhouse central performances from Thomas Ryckewaert and Daphné Verhelst – co-founders of Belgium's renowned radical theatre troupe Wolff.

Smits' knack with actors is again displayed in Under the Weight of Clouds – he coaxes a performance of harrowing believability from a tot barely out of diapers, Golda de Leon. In this skilful variation on John Cassavetes' Gloria and Erick Zonca's Julia, Smits plunges us into the nightmarish existence of Elena (Tanja Otolski), a young woman from Ukraine enmeshed in the grim world of human-trafficking and forced prostitution. Taking responsibility for a colleague's infant child, Elena finds herself facing a nightmarish dilemma in a near-unrecognisable 21st-century Netherlands of stark social division and hidden forms of exploitation that are so easy to overlook, so easy to ignore. But not here; not now; no more.

Surova doza realizma z že tolikokrat povedano, a nikoli dovolj slišano zgodbo: Ukrajinka Elena je, da bi preživiljala družino, ujeta v ponizjujoče suženjstvo pod vodstvom nizozemskih zvodnikov. Ko se v njeni skrbi po naključju znajde mala hči kolegice, mora eno življenje – dekličino ali svoje – postaviti v drugi plan.

Familiar story that should be told again and again is told once again, in a raw and realistic style. In order to support her family Elena, an immigrant from Ukraine, slavishly sells her body under the supervision of Dutch pimps. She accidentally finds herself guarding her colleague's daughter and faces a dilemma whose life to take care of first: her own or the girl's.

V iskanju raja

Kaj pomeni, če filmski ustvarjalec v naslovu filma uporabi besedo »raj«? S »koščkom raja« Dlouhy opredeljuje življenjski slog izvirnih tirolskih priseljencev v Peruju in njihovo zgodbo o iskanju raja pred stošestdesetimi leti. Če sledite filmarjem Danielu in Danieli, ne začutite veliko raja. Vsaka doba ima svoje priseljence, ljudi, ki iščejo novo domovino, ker prejšnja ne deluje več. Gre za staro biblijsko zgodbo o rajskevem vrtu. Domišljija, utopija, vizije upanja o odkritju svobode v drugem kotičku našega sveta, da bi našli kraj, kjer se lahko ustalimo. A film nam pove tudi, da se ne moremo otresti dedičnine in tradicije. Tudi v novi hiši je veliko nevarnosti.

Daniel Dlouhy je eden izmed vzhajajočih tirolskih filmarjev – ustvarjalen, pozitiven in poln energije, s katero na platno prenaša svoja opažanja.

In Search of Paradise

What does it mean if a filmmaker uses the word »paradise« in the title of a film? With »something paradise« Dlouhy is defining lifestyle of original Tyrolean immigrants in Peru and the story about their search of paradise 160 years ago. If you follow the filmmakers Daniel and Daniela you can feel little paradise. Every era has its immigrants, people who are looking for a new homeland, because the old one does not work any more. It's the old bible story about the Garden of Eden. Fantasy, utopia, visions of hope to find freedom in another part of our world – to find some place to settle down. But the film tells us also that you cannot shake off heritage and traditions. Also a new house contains several dangers.

Daniel Dlouhy is one of the upcoming Tyrolean filmmakers – creative, positive and full of energy to bring his observations to the screen.

Ko je sredi 19. stoletja približno 330 Tirolcev in 120 Porenjecev migriralo v perujsko džunglo, so imeli s seboj malo prtljage, a veliko upanja. Sto šestdeset let pozneje mobilnost in preseljevanje nista le stalna tema preteklosti, temveč tudi sedanjosti. V nekoc odročni kraj je prišlo še veliko drugih ljudi in tirolsko narečje je postal redkost. V dokumentarcu prebivalci mesta Pozuzo spregovorijo o svojih predstavah o domu, identiteti in izvoru.

»Središče filma je skupnost v Peruju. Migracijska gibanja so del človeškega bivanja. Tudi – ali predvsem – v moderni dobi igrajo pomembno vlogo, na katero zmeraj znova pozabljamo. Vsak dan umirajo ljudje, ki skušajo prodreti v trdnjavno Evropo. Tirolska, eden najbogatejših delov Avstrije, se že od nekdaj borí proti ljudem drugih narodnosti – hkrati pa je ponosna na tirolsko kolonijo v perujskem pragozdu.

Košček raja vidim kot kritiko tirolskih tradicij, tiolske togosti in trdoglavosti ter njene včasih izjemno konservativne družbe. Zares sem pretresen zaradi sovraštva in rasizma, ki ga številni Tirolci gojijo do drugih – to me navdaja s hromečo nemočjo. Film nosi v sebi moč, da odpravi to ohromelost in vzpostavi nove ali drugačne impulze – vsaj za kratek, zelo kratek trenutek. Z vsakim filmom na novo odkrivam filmski medij in njegovo moč. Nemara sem se s Koščkom raja prav zato hotel vrmiti k zame veljavni praoibliku dokumentarnega filma.« Daniel Dlouhy

DANIEL DLOUHY

Rojen leta 1983. Filmski ustvarjalec, radijski voditelj, direktor filmskega festivala (The Filmfest Rejected) in vodja gledališča Freies in Innsbrucku. Na univerzi v Innsbrucku je študiral primerjalno književnost. Filmu se je prvič posvetil na HFF v Münchenu kot asistent produkcije, pozneje kot vodja produkcije, in potem v različnih vlogah pri številnih filmskih projektih. Nato je začel ustvarjati svoje filme, v večini kratkometraže, reklame in športne filme. Trenutno pripravlja svoj naslednji dokumentarec.

Born in 1983. A filmmaker, radio host, director of a film festival (The Filmfest Rejected) and Manager of the Freies Theater Innsbruck. He studied comparative literature at the university of Innsbruck. He made his first steps into film at the HFF in Munich as a production assistant and later as production manager, and after that he worked in various positions on different film projects. Later he started to make his own, mostly short films, advertisements and sports films. He is now working on his next documentary.

When about 330 Tyroleans and 120 Rhinelanders migrated to the Peruvian jungle in the mid 19th century, they carried little luggage, but a lot of hope with them. 160 years later, mobility and migration are a constant topic not only of the past but of the present. Many other people have come to the once remote area, and the Tyrolean dialect has become rare. In this documentary the people of Pozuzo get to speak about their perceptions of home, identity and origins.

»The centrepiece of the film is a community in Peru. Migration movements are part of human existence. Also, or especially, in the modern era they play a significant role, which is always forgotten. People die every day while trying to get into the fortress Europe. Tyrol as one of the richest parts of Austria has always defended itself against people of other nationalities – but it is also proud of the Tyrolean colony in the jungles of Peru.

I see Something Paradise as a criticism of Tyrolean traditions, Tyrolean inflexibility and stubbornness, and its sometimes extremely conservative society. I'm actually shocked by the hatred and racism that many Tyroleans harbour against others and this imbues me with the feeling of a paralyzing powerlessness. Film holds the power to break this paralysis and restore new or different impulses – at least for a brief, very brief moment. With each film, I rediscover the medium of film and its power. And maybe that is why with Something Paradise I wanted to return to for me a valid, original form of the documentary genre.« Daniel Dlouhy

Nočna mora v indijanskem rezervatu

Ko naivni in požrtvovalni Mike (»Veš, zakaj je Jimi Hendrix umrl? Ker Mike Danube ni bil tam z lisicami, da bi mu rešil življenje«) prejme video posnetek svojega najboljšega prijatelja Chrisa, ki sredi indijanskega rezervata in amfetaminske psihoze (»Vladni vohuni so nam vsem za petami«) strelja na nevidne zasledovalce, se nemudoma odpravi v razpadajočo kolibo, da bi prijatelja iztrgal iz kremljev odvisnosti. Četudi z elektrošoki in parom lisic. Že tako težaven podvig pa kmalu preraste v nekaj veliko bolj grozljivega in grozečega, ko se začnejo nad dvojico zgrinjati skrivenostni indici in vsepovsod prežeče nevarnosti. Nekaj zloveščega ju opazuje, pa to niso samo plemenski varnostniki z nosom za posel, dva retardirana drogeraša, milenaristični kult (z režijskim dvojcem in producentom Lawsonom), srhljivi evangelist borznega posredništva (na lov za ostanki indijanske posesti) in še srhljivejši sorbonski arheolog z nosom za »domačico« in lynchevsko bizarnost ...

Razplet, ki se obzirno, a igrivo spogleduje s filmi, kot je denimo Čarovnica iz Blaira (The Blair Witch Project) in še zlasti z zgodnjim Raimijem (Evil Dead), mimogrede, in morda nevede, odpravi pomanjkljivosti prvega, ko nadležnost hiperaktivne in vse preveč hiperrealne ročne kamere nadomesti z umerjenimi namigi na prvoosebno perspektivo morilca/pošasti inobilico foto-video parafernaliјe, ki ju v kamero ujamejo veliko trdnejše roke Aarona Moorheada (korežiser, direktor fotografije, komontažer, mojster posebnih učinkov). Medtem ko Bensonov (korežiser, scenarist, producent, komontažer) scenarij ponudi izvirno predelavo utečenih žanrskih motivov in klasičnih zapletov tipa »koča v gozdu«, »mestne srajce na podeželju« in tistega ljubljenca japonske grozljivke, »morilskih medijev«. V tej koči so čisto vsi maligni, od fotografij do filmskih trakov in digitalnih fajlov, od diapositivov do dnevnih zapiskov, od jamskih poslikav do satelitskih posnetkov. In v gozdu ne oprezajo izprijeni kmetavzi, pač pa nekaj tehnološko daleč bolj razvitega, kaj šele opremljenega.

Razplet, ki zdaj že slovi kot »razburljivo odkritje lanske festivalske sezone« in »biser žanrske reinvencije«, je obenem napeta in strašljiva nadnaravna srhljivka ter dodelan in domiseln ameriški indie. Poln dvojnih pomenov in metafilmskih referenc. Popoln preplet iskrne zgodbe o prijateljstvu in tiste fantastične o vsemedijskem poltergeistu; prva priskrbi črno komiko in dramo, druga pristen srh in suspenz.

Ta mali neodvisni biser se morda res upira žanrski opredelitvi, pa vseeno – in vsem smrtnim nevarnostim ter Chrisovim samomorilskim mislim navkljub – utripa s prepoznavnim srčnim duhom, z življenjsko radostjo, lastno prav tistem žanrskim klasikam, ki se jim tako neizbežno pokloni.

Native Thrills in Native American Territory

When naïve but well-meaning everyman Mike (»Do you know why Jimi Hendrix died? He didn't have Mike Danube and a set of handcuffs to save his life.«) receives a video of his best buddy Chris shooting his gun off out in the boonies, high on meth and paranoia (»The government issues each of us a shadow.«), he drives out to the rundown shack – at the edge of an Indian reservation, as it turns out – determined to stage a one-man intervention and drag his friend to rehab. Even if it takes a stun gun and the said pair of handcuffs. An ambitious plan from the get-go, Mike's selfless mission grows increasingly dangerous and eerie as cryptic clues and ominous threats abound. There's something sinister out there, and it's not just the two drug-dealing hicks, the business-savvy tribal security, the local doomsday cult (featuring the directorial duo and producer David Lawson), the creepy mortgage-selling travelling evangelist (after what's left of the Native land and real estate) or a creepier-yet French archaeologist with a penchant for dope and pure Lynchian weirdness...

With an attentive but playful wink to the likes of Blair Witch and early Raimi's Evil Dead, Resolution, perhaps unwittingly, rectifies all that was out of whack in the former, dispensing with the nuisance of hyperactive and all too hyper-real handheld camera and replacing it instead with a measured innuendo of the killer/monster P.O.V. and an abundance of photo-video paraphernalia, both artfully photographed by Moorehead's (Co-Director, Cinematographer, Co-Editor, VFX Artist) much steadier hands. Benson's (Co-Director, Writer, Producer, Co-Editor) script meanwhile delivers an original reworking of well-trodden tropes and the classic »cabin in the woods«, »city-folk in the backwoods«, and that j-horror favorite, »haunted media« scenarios. No medium is left unturned here, from photos to film stock to digital footage, from slides to satellites, from diaries to cave paintings. And it's not the deprived country bumpkins that lurk in the woods, but something far more technically advanced, and incredibly equipped, for that matter.

»One of the most talked-about discoveries of last year's festival circuit« and a »genre-bending gem«, Resolution is at once a suspenseful and spine-chilling supernatural thriller, and a crafty and clever American indie. Replete with double entendres and metafilmic references, it perfectly blends a compelling buddy story and a media-manipulating poltergeist plot, the first supplying dark comedy and drama, the second growing tension and some genuine shivers.

The small indie marvel may very well defy genre classification, but – despite all deadly threats and Chris's suicidal tendencies – it clearly possesses a joie de vivre, that hearty and humorous spirit inherent in all genre classics it inevitably pays tribute to.

Michael se odloči, da bo najboljšega prijatelja Chrisa pripravil do tega, da se strezni in si uredi življenje. Z najboljšimi nameni sproži načrt, s katerim hoče prepričati Chrisa v odvajanje od trdih drog, preden ga odivnost pahne v prezgodnjo smrt. A, kar se začne kot poskus reševanja prijateljevega življenja, kmalu ubere nepričakovano stranpot, ko se prijatelja soočita z osebnimi demoni, posledicami preteklih dejanj in silami onkraj njunega nadzora.

»Ponosna sva, da ustvarjava v pestri, inteligentni in domiselnii areni žanskega filma. Izjemni navdih črpava iz nizkoproračunske DIY tradicije grozljivk, kot sta Koča strahu in Noč živih mrtvecev. Ampak najin film je, z vsem spoštovanjem, nekaj povsem drugega.« (Justin Benson)

JUSTIN BENSON & AARON SCOTT MOORHEAD

Justin je odraščal v San Diegu. Po diplomi z UCLA se je lotil pisarja, režije in domala vseh priložnostnih del, kar jih ponuja filmska industrija. S pomočjo slednjih je nazadnje le nabral dovolj denarja za Razplet, svoj celovečerni prvenec. Aaron je odraščal na Floridi in svoj prvenec posnel že pri rosnih 19-ih. Od študija filma na Floridski državni univerzi deluje na vizualnem področju filmske umetnosti kot direktor fotografije, režiser, mojster posebnih učinkov in kolorist. Globoko ceni (skoraj) vsak film, ki si drzne tvegati.

Justin grew up in San Diego. Since graduating from UCLA, he has written, directed, and worked just about every odd job across the spectrum of the film industry. Most of the budget for Resolution, his first feature, was raised from these gigs. Growing up in Tarpon Springs, Florida, Aaron directed his first feature at age 19. Since graduating from FSU Film School, he has worked in the visual side of filmmaking as a cinematographer, director, VFX artist, and colorist. He has a deep love for nearly any film that takes a risk.

Michael is committed to getting his best friend Chris to sober up and get his life back on track. With the best of intentions, Michael implements a plan to convince Chris to go to rehab before his drug addiction leads to an early death. But what begins as an attempt to save his friend's life quickly takes an unexpected turn as the two friends confront personal demons, the consequences of past actions, and forces beyond their control.

»We take a lot of pride in working in the diverse, smart, inventive realm of genre film. We're massively inspired by the low-budget DIY tradition of horror flicks like Cabin Fever and Night of the Living Dead, but we're respectfully something very, very different.«
(Justin Benson)

Tekstura kot podtekst – Izbor 35-mm filmov Johna Pricea

»Filmov ne snemam po scenarijih ... igralcev ni ... Film posnamem, kakor bi popotnik posnel fotografije ... kot dnevnik ali spomin na doživetja ... popotovanja ... rojstne dneve ... krste ... ločitve ... poroke ... parade ... počitnice ... slovese ... uporabljam stari 16-milimetrski trak in ga sam razvijam, kar je ceneje, kakor če bi presedlal na digitalno ... tekstura emulzije na neki način komunicira na čustveni ravni in postopek me fascinira ... montaža je kakor urejanje albuma ... je proces refleksije ... kdo si bil, ko so bile podobe posnete, kaj si postal in kako si se spremenil ... kako se vse spreminja ... intenziven proces opazovanja, premišljevanja in refleksije ... mislim, da gre za poskus posredovanja nekega občutja bogastva človeštva ... gledališča absurda ... krhkosti preteklosti in sedanosti ... poleg tega najdem smisel vsega samo skozi prijateljstvo in izkazovanje ljubezni.« (John Price, avgust 2001)

V enem izmed svojih številnih esejev o robnih oblikah filma je Mike Hoolboom zapisal, da je del skrivnosti filmov Johna Pricea v tem, kako male stvari spremeni v velike. Podobno kot v zgornjem uvodu ... stavki, razdeljeni v drobce, njegove lastne besede ... osamljene in povečevalne kujejo nov pomen. Poezija.

John Price vlagajo role filmskega traku v svojo kamero že več kakor dvajset let. Veliko je potoval, zadnjih deset let, odkar se mu je rodil prvi otrok, pa veliko časa preživi doma. Price-filmars se intuitivno odziva na svoj vsakdan in preprosto snema, včasih celo ne da bi nameril, svoje otroke, svoj dom, okolico in izlete. Ljubi svoje kamere in objektive in vse, kar ti zmorejo, pa tudi naključne procese, ki se dogajajo pri razvijanju filmskega traku. Zvitke filma razvija v svoji kleti. To je kraj, kjer se podoba razkrije, kjer male reči začenjajo postajati velike, kjer se zgodi vse. Kemija kot srečanje, spojina reprezentacije in spomina. Zelo osebno, a nič več zasebno. Z razvijanjem teh filmskih trakov ustvari film reinterpretacij.

V projekciji se zgodi čarovnija. Nenadoma se pojavijo vse pomembne stvari, nezločcene, povečane. Velikost je pomembna ... na ta način se je John Price odločil spominjati.

Za Kino Otok bo izvorno neme filme Morske serije spremljala nežna glasba Izolana Elvisa Šahbaza.

Texture as Subtext – A selection of 35mm films by John Price

»I don't make movies from scripts... there are no actors... I shoot movie film like a traveller would shoot stills... as a diary or memory of experiences... travels... birthdays... christenings... break-ups... weddings... parades... holidays... good-byes... using old 16mm film and processing it myself is cheaper than going digital... the emulsion's texture somehow communicates on an emotional level and the process fascinates me... editing is like organizing a scrapbook... it is a process of reflection... who you were when the images were recorded and who you have become and how you have changed... how everything changes... an intensive process of observation, meditation and reflection... I think it's an attempt to communicate a sense of the richness of humanity... the theatre of the absurd... the fragility of past and present... besides, friendship and loving is the only way I know how to make sense of this place.« (John Price, August 2001)

In one of his many essays on fringe film, Mike Hoolboom writes that part of the mystery of the work of John Price is how he makes small things large. A bit like with this introduction... sentences divided into fragments, his own words... isolated and magnifying, giving new meaning. Poetry. John Price has been loading his camera with rolls of film for more than 20 years now. He travelled around and, for the last ten years, with the birth of his first child, spends lots of time just at home. Price the filmmaker reacts intuitively to this daily routine and just shoots, in some cases even without pointing, his children, his private home, his surroundings and day-trips. He loves his cameras and lenses and what they can do, and also the accidental processes involved with the processing of the film stock. The basement of his home is where he develops these rolls of film. This is the place where the image reveals itself, where the small things start to become large things, where it all happens. Chemistry as an encounter, a compound, of representation and of memory. Very personal, but no longer private. By developing these films, he creates a cinema of reinterpretations.

In projection, the magic occurs. Suddenly, all the important things are there, unpolished, enlarged. Size matters... this is the way John Price has chosen to remember.

For Kino Otok, the Sea Series films, originally silent, will be accompanied by some gentle live music by Elvis Šahbaz.

DESET TISOČ SANJ

TEN THOUSAND DREAMS

35mm, 1.37, nemi/silent, čb/b&w, 2004, 6'

Iz tistega obdobja nimam spominov ... pred vrtcem, pred gosto hrano, pred kakršnokoli idejo o tem, kaj me čaka. Slike so bile posnete nekaj ur zatem, ko je moj dojenček prešel veliko ločnico med toplim hrumečim vesoljem materine maternice in jutranjo svetlobo naše postelje.

I have no memories from that time... before kindergarten, before solid food, before any idea of what lay ahead. The images were shot a few hours after my baby had traversed the great divide between the warm rumbling universe of his mother's womb and the morning light of our bed.

OROŽJE/IGRA

GUN/PLAY

35mm, 1.37, zvočni/sound, čb/b&w, 2006, 9'

Ko sem posnel čuden dogodek, ki se je spontano zgodil na odročni plaži, sem ugotovil, da imam še dva zvitka filma, posneta nekaj let prej, in da bi lahko posneti zvitki skupaj delovali kot triptih. Podzavesten odziv na stopnjevanje oboroženega nasilja v mestu.

After shooting a strange episode that occurred spontaneously on a secluded beach, I realized that there were two other rolls shot years earlier that might work as a triptych. A subconscious reaction to the escalating gun violence in the city.

RAZGLED NA SLAPOVE S KANADSKE STRANI

VIEW OF THE FALLS FROM THE CANADIAN SIDE

35mm, 2.34, nemi/silent, barvni, čb/colour, b&w, 2006, 7'

Leta 1896 je William Heise posnel prve 35-milimetrške gibljive slike Kanade pri Niagarskih slapovih. Sistem štirih perforacij v kamери, ki ga je uporabil, sta oblikovala in izdelala Thomas Edison in William K. Dickson. Filmski trak je izdelal George Eastman po Edisonovih navodilih. Ta film sem posnel z uporabo enake osnovne tehnike; posvečen je vizionarskim idejam teh pionirjev.

In 1896, William Heise photographed the first 35mm motion picture images of Canada at Niagara Falls. The 4-perforation camera system he used was designed and built by Thomas Edison and William K. Dickson. The stock was manufactured by George Eastman to Edison's specifications. This film was photographed using the same essential technology and is dedicated to the visionary ideas of those pioneers.

DOMASHNYEE KINO / HOME MOVIE

35mm, 2.35, zvočni/sound, barvni, čb/colour, b&w, 2010, 27'

Domashnyee Kino je home movie na mnogih ravneh – snemal sem ga štiri leta, v hiši in okoli nje, s 35-milimetrsko filmsko kamero in različnimi čudnimi filmskimi trakovi, ki so se starali v nenadzorovanih pogojih v kleti. Spremlja prehajanje mojih dveh otrok v vse bolj naraščajoče zavedanje sveta ... Beleži tok svetlobe in zvoka po njunem okolju ... Je počastitev načina, na katerega se svetloba lomi skozi košček stekla (v tem primeru skozi ruske anamorfne leče iz 70. let) in njenega preoblikovanja površine emulzije v impresionistično reprezentacijo trenutkov.

Photographed over four years in and around the house with a 35mm movie camera and a variety of odd film stocks that had been aging in the uncontrolled conditions of the basement, »domashnyee kino« is a home movie on many levels. It follows the passage of my two children coming to an ever-increasing awareness of the world... It traces the flow of light and sound through their environment... It is a celebration of the way light bends through a piece of glass (in this case, a couple of 70s-era Russian anamorphics) and how this light transforms the surface of an emulsion into an impressionist representation of these moments.

JOHN PRICE

Neodvisni filmski ustvarjalec, ki od leta 1986 ustvarja eksperimentalne dokumentarne filme, plesne filme in filmske dnevničke. Njegova ljubezen do analogné fotografije ga je po naravní poti vodila k poglobljenemu alkemističnemu raziskovanju s široko paletó filmskih emulzij in formatov. V takšnem načinu ustvarjanja teksture podobe ni samo podlagá za pomen, marveč tudi sama predstavlja pomen; to je ena osrednjih potez Priceovega dela in zaznamuje tudi filme, ki jih je posnel za druge.

John Price is an independent filmmaker who has produced experimental documentaries, dance and diary films since 1986. His love of analog photography led naturally to extensive alchemical experimentation with a wide range of motion picture film emulsions and camera formats. Engagement with these modes of creation connected the way an images texture communicates subtext and is a key feature of his work and the work he shoots for others.

Bojevnika

Ko sem bil navzoč na Atosu dvojice Miorelli, očeta in sina, so me prevevali nenavadno intenzivni in globoki občutki. Morenove besede so me spravljale v hipnotičen trans, Cosimove slike pa so mi istočasno odpirale svet za svetom. Svet za svetom. In potem še en svet.

Priznam, da sem občutil še eno čustvo, ki ga sicer čutim zelo redko – ponos. Ponos, da sem lahko tam in to vidim in slišim. Ponos, da je to sploh mogoče.

Oče in sin, bojevnika. Tokrat ne bojevnika vojne, ampak bojevnika umetnosti.

Jan Cvitkovič

Besede, podobe in zvoki nas popeljejo na potovanje v odmaknjena ozračja gore Atos. Ti trije različni »glasovi« součinkujejo, prepletajoč spomin in domišljijo. Atos je performans, ki projicirano digitalno sliko, govorjeno besedo in glasbo združi v edinstveno pripovedovalno sredstvo.

»Moreno, moj oče, je imel januarja 1985 priložnost obiskati goro Atos, kamor ga je gnalo strastno raziskovanje tradicije in simbolizma bizantinskih ikon. Posebna dovoljenja, neprijazne vremenske razmere in nekaj naključnih srečanj so mu omogočili, da je lahko potovanju od enega samostana do drugega namenil veliko več časa, kakor je dovoljeval običajni vizum za obiskovalce. /.../

Zgodbe in anekdote, ki jih je oče prinesel s poti, so spremljale moje otroštvo in utrjevale like, atmosfere in kraje, ki jih v resnici nikoli nisem videl. Zdaj, več kakor petindvajset let pozneje, sva se združila, da poustvariva nekatera izmed teh evokativnih občutij ter se poigrava z mejami spomina in domišljije. Ob tej priložnosti bova s seboj pripeljala tretjega pripovedovalca zgodb, mojstra za zvočne efekte (Foley artist) in glasbenika Massima Croceja: okolje za zgodbo bo ustvaril z uporabo glasbe in »piratskih posnetkov«, ki jih je moj oče z žepnim kasetofonom posnel na Atosu.

Performans je del širšega projekta, ki je pripeljal do nastanka ilustrirane knjige Athos. Appunti dalla Montagna Santa. Izšla je pri založbi Editori del Grifo v Italiji.«

Cosimo Miorelli

Warriors

When I attended Moreno and Cosimo Miorelli's Athos, I was suffused by unusually intense and deep feelings. Moreno's words put me into a hypnotic trance, while at the same time, Cosimo's pictures opened up to me one world after another. One world after another. And then another. I admit I felt another emotion, an emotion I very rarely feel – pride. I was proud that I could be there to see it and hear it. I was proud that it could even be possible. Father and son, warriors. Not warriors of war, but warriors of art.

Jan Cvitkovič

The audience is taken through a journey in the remote atmospheres of Mount Athos guided by words, images and sounds. These three different »voices« interact, interweaving memory and imagination. Athos is a live set combining projected digital painting, spoken word and music into a unique storytelling device.

»Moreno, my father, had the chance to visit Mount Athos in the January of 1985, driven by his passionate research on the tradition and symbolism of Byzantine icons. Thanks to special permits, hostile weather conditions and some lucky encounters he could travel from one monastery to the other much longer than the usual 4-days visitor visa would allow. /.../
The stories and anecdotes my father brought back from his trip have accompanied my childhood, consolidating characters, atmospheres and places I have never really seen myself. Now, more than 25 years later, we have come together to recreate some of those evocative sensations and to play with the boundaries of memory and imagination. On this occasion we'll have with us a third storyteller, Foley artist/musician Massimo Croce, who will create an environment for the tale using music and »pirate recordings« captured on the Athos by my father with a pocket tape recorder.

The performance is part of a larger project, that led to the creation of an illustrated book, Athos. Appunti dalla Montagna Santa, published by Editori del Grifo in Italy.«

BOUDEWIJN KOOLE

Leiden, 1965. Po diplomi iz industrijskega oblikovanja se je posvetil filmskemu ustvarjanju. V številnih dokumentarnih delih, ki jih je posnel za nizozemsko televizijo, se posveča predvsem temam otroštva, težkega odraščanja, izgube in smrti. Kauwboy je njegov prvi igralni celovečer.

Leiden, 1965. After graduating in industrial design, he devoted his time to filmmaking. In numerous documentaries made for Dutch television, he focuses especially on the topics of childhood, difficulties in growing up, loss and death. Kauwboy is his first feature film.

Desetletni Jojo živi z očetom na podeželju. Dnevi mu minevajo med samotnimi potikanji po naravi, treningi vaterpola in dolgimi telefonskimi pogovori z mamo. Nekega dne Jojo najde mlado kavko in jo skriva v domov. Med fantom in zapuščenim ptičkom kmalu vzklije prijateljstvo. Pogled na svet skozi oči desetletnega dečka, izgubljenega med resničnostjo in domišljijo. Ljubljenc občinstva in festivalskih žirij je med drugim prejel lanskoletno nagrado mladega občinstva (Evropska filmska akademija).

»Velik del filma je navdihnilo moje lastno otroštvo. Vse prihaja iz časa, ko sem imel deset let in sem živel na robu naše vasi. Skozi okno svoje sobe sem videl polja in na poljih sem se čutil svobodnega.« Boudewijn Koole

The ten-year old Jojo lives in the countryside with his father. He spends his days wandering alone in nature, training water polo and having long telephone conversations with his mother. One day, Jojo finds a baby jackdaw and brings it home in secret. Soon, a friendship develops between the boy and the abandoned bird. A view of the world through the eyes of a ten-year old boy lost between reality and imagination.

»Much of the film was inspired by my own childhood. It all goes back to a time when I was ten years old and lived at the edge of our village. Through the window of my room, I saw the fields and in the fields I felt free.« Boudewijn Koole

WES ANDERSON

Rodil se je leta 1969 v teksaškem Houstonu. S samo sedmimi celovčetvimi v dvajsetih letih se je uveljavil kot eden najplivnejših in najizvirnejših ameriških filmskih ustvarjalcev svoje generacije. Prepletajoč številne vplive je izobiloval svojevrstom in prepoznaven slog, mesečnico visoko stilizirane estetike, ekscentričnega humorja in humanizma; popoln spoj stila in substance.

Born in 1969 in Houston, Texas. With only seven features in twenty years, he has become established as one of the most influential and original American filmmakers of his generation. Intertwining numerous influences, he developed a unique and recognisable style, a mixture of highly stylised aesthetics, eccentric humour and humanism; a perfect union of style and substance.

Mali otok v Novi Angliji, poleti leta 1965. Na smrt zaljubljena dvanajstletnika skleneta skriveni dogovor in ob zori skupaj pobegneta v divjino. On je fant z očali in rakanjo kapo; sirota in najbolj nepriljubljen član svojega skavtskega odreda. Ona je deklica z daljnogledom in kovčkom fantazijskih knjig. Novi film 'fantastičnega gospoda Wesa Andersona' je zabavna, priscrčna in vizualno domišljena priповed o mladem paru, ki ju prva ljubezen tako prevzame, da se resničnost zazdi kot fantazija. Otvoritveni film lanskega Cannes in ljubljenec kritikov, ki je podiral rekorde gledanosti v ameriških umetniških kinematografih.

Set on an island off the coast of New England in the summer of 1965, Moonrise Kingdom tells the story of two 12-year-olds who fall in love, make a secret pact, and run away together into the wilderness. He is a boy with glasses and a coonskin cap; an orphan and the most unpopular member of his scout troop. She is a girl with binoculars and a suitcase of fantasy books. The latest film by the 'fantastic Mr. Wes Anderson' is an entertaining, heartfelt and visually refined tale of a young couple so taken over by first love that reality appears like fantasy. The opening film of last year's Cannes and the favourite of the critics broke box-office records in American art cinemas.

CÉLINE SCIAMMA

Rodila se je leta 1978 v predmestju Pariza. Na univerzi Nanterre je magistrirala iz francoske književnosti in na filmski šoli La Fémis diplomirala iz scenaristike. Na mednarodno filmsko prizorišče se je prebila že s prvencem Vodne lilate, ki je premiero doživel v sklopu Posebnih pogled na festivalu v Cannesu ter požel številne pozitivne kritičke odzive in nagrade.

Born in 1978 in a Paris suburb. She obtained her master's degree in French Literature from the University of Nanterre and graduated in screenwriting from the La Fémis film school. She broke through to the international film scene already with her debut Water Lilies, which premiered in the Un certain regard section at Cannes, garnering numerous positive critical responses and awards.

Laure je desetletna deklica, ki bi jo v kavbojkah, spodnji majici in s kratko pristriženo pričesko zlahka zamenjali za fanta. S starši in mlajšo sestrico Jeanne se je pravkar priselila v novo sosesko. Ko prvič sreča prikupno Liso in jo ta vpraša za ime, se ji Laure obotavljivo predstavi kot Mikaël in deklica v hipu postane deček. Drugi film avtorice Vodnih liliij je zgodba o nedolžni otroški prevari, ki razkrije nepričakovane resnice o odnosih med otroki, otroki in starši, ter o še bolj zapletenem razmerju med srcem in telesom. Očarljivo, zabavno in lahko in dolg poletni dan.

Laure is a ten-year-old girl who wearing jeans, an undershirt and a short haircut could easily be mistaken for a boy. She has just moved to a new neighbourhood with her parents and a younger sister. When she first meets the cute Lisa, who asks her her name, Laure hesitantly introduces herself as Mikaël, thus instantaneously becoming a boy. The second film by the director of Water Lilies is a story of an innocent child's ruse that reveals unexpected truths about the relations between children, children and parents and an even more complicated relation between heart and body. Charming, entertaining and light like a long summer day.

SIMONE VAN DUSSELDORP

Leta 1967 rojena nizozemska filmska in televizijska režiserka je diplomirala na Nizozemski akademiji za film in televizijo v Amsterdamu. Za film Žabe in paglavci je na mednarodnih festivalih prejela številne nagrade.

Born in 1967 in the Netherlands. She is a film and TV director who graduated from the Netherlands Film Academy in Amsterdam. She has received numerous international festival awards for Frogs & Toads.

Šestletni Max čez noč ostane pri babici na deželi, saj mora njegov starejši brat v bolnišnico v mestu. Pred odhodom mu zaupa pomembno naložo: najti mora žabji mrest, sicer ne bo nikoli več spregovoril z njim. Max in babica se imata skupaj zelo lepo: rešita izgubljeno krastačo, pomagata ranjenemu ježu, napečeta goro slastnih palačink in deček sčasoma pozabi na mrest. Na obisku v bolnišnici pa se Max ob pogledu na brata spomni na dano obljubo. Svež, spomladanski film za najmlajše navdušuje z veselo, preprosto in življena polno zgodbo. Obuja otroško čudjenje naravi in vsemu živemu, kar v njej prebiva, radostno igrovost in drobne pripetljaje prvih prijateljstev.

The six-year-old Max stays over at his grandmother's in the countryside because his older brother has to go to the town hospital. Before leaving for the hospital, Max's brother entrusts him with an important task: he has to find some frogspawn or his brother will never speak to him again. Max has fun with his grandma and in time forgets about the frogspawn. While visiting his brother, who has lost his voice due to the operation, Max remembers his promise. This fresh, spring film for the youngest delights with a gay, simple and vivacious story. It encourages children to wonder at nature and all that lives within it, foregrounding joyful playfulness and the little things that happen in first friendships.

Video na plaži 2013

Izolska plaža Svetilnik bo tudi letos prizela vlogo enega izmed osrednjih festivalskih središč, saj si bo le lučaj od morja vsak večer moč ogledati pester program kratkih filmov mladih in neuveljavljenih avtorjev z vseh vetrov. Tradicionalna festivalska sekcija Video na plaži tako znova ponuja simbiotični vpogled v domačo neodvisno produkcijo, postavljeno ob bok tujim neodvisnim avtorjem in filmom, ki jih definirajo težnje po kritičnem odsevanju realnosti, po živahnem preizpraševanju medčloveških odnosov in po podajanju glasu družbenemu robu. Iz Rusije, Indije, ZDA, Danske, Italije, Avstrije, Madžarske, Poljske, Hrvaške, Francije, Španije, Srbije in seveda z vseh koncev Slovenije je na naš naslov priromala stoterica kratkih metrov, od katerih se jih bo med festivalskim petkom in nedeljo zavrtela kar dobra tretjina. Letošnji izbor zaznamuje izjemna raznolikost zvrsti, tematik in provenienc, a bo kljub temu vsak dnevni sklop ponudil celovito izkušnjo, v kateri se pomeni in filmi med seboj prepletajo in nadgrajujejo. Od migracij in izkoriščanih migrantskih delavcev, marginalnih skupin, kot so romske skupnosti ali mladi prekerni delavci, od aktivizma in opolnomočenja, od spoprijemanja z lastno identiteto in komičnimi absurdji vsakdana pa vse do nenehne slutnje vojne bo program, skratka, predvsem v znamenju družbene kritike in tesnobnih refleksij sodobnosti, a vendar ne povsem brez iskrive hudomušnosti ali čistih cinefilskih užitkov.

Tako bodo nekatere izmed letošnjih vrhuncev nedvomno predstavljali tudi filmi, kot je španski znanstvenofantastični retro thrash Decapoda Shock, film o astronavtu, ki se po usodni nesreči vrne na zemljo kot mutant, večkrat nagrajeni eksperimentalni ruski film Hermenevtika, ki se pojgrava z manipulacijo pomena in dojemanja vojne propagande, ali pa temačni animirani presežek Rabbitland, dobitnik kristalnega medveda za najboljši kratki film na Berlinalu. Prav tako ne gre zamuditi izbora vitalne domače produkcije in avtorjev, ki se na Kino Otok bodisi vračajo bodisi pa bodo z nami prvič in s katerimi se bomo pogovarjali ob projekcijah. Obenem velja omeniti še Luksuz ali ZVVIKS ter ostale produkcije, ki se preko svojih delavnic vedno znova izkazujejo za izjemno plodovite prostore filmskega ustvarjanja, saj že leta redno prispevajo k nastankom presunljivih dokumentarnih filmov in pravih malih animiranih mojstrovin, o katerih kakovosti se lahko pod zvezdnatim nebom prepričate tudi sami. Se vidimo na plaži!

Video on the Beach 2013

The Lighthouse beach in Izola will once again take on the role of one of the main festival venues. Only a stone's throw away from the sea, you will be able to see a rich nightly programme of short films by young and non-established filmmakers from all walks of life. This traditional festival section thus again offers a symbiotic insight into the Slovenian independent production, placed alongside foreign independent directors and films defined by tendencies to critically reflect reality, rousingly question interpersonal relationships and give a voice to the margins of society.

From Russia, India, USA, Denmark, Italy, Austria, Hungary, Poland, Croatia, France, Spain, Serbia and of course all corners of Slovenia, around 100 short films arrived at our address, a good third of which will be screened between Friday, June 7th and Sunday, June 9th. This year's selection includes an exceptional variety of genres, topics and proveniences. Despite this, each daily programme will offer an integral experience, with the meanings and films intertwining and building on one another. From migrations and exploited migrant workers, marginalised communities, such as the Roma or young precarious workers, from activism and empowerment, from facing one's own identity and the comical absurdities of everyday life to the incessant premonition of war – the programme will thus be marked by social criticism and anxious reflections on contemporaneity, but it will not be entirely without sparkling jocularity or pure cinephile pleasures.

This year's highlights will doubtlessly include films such as the Spanish sci-fi retro thrash Decapoda Shock, a film about an astronaut who has a fateful accident and returns to earth as a mutant, the multi-award-winning Russian experimental film Hermeneutics, which plays with the manipulation of the meaning and perception of war propaganda, or the dark animated masterpiece Rabbitland, the winner of the Crystal Bear for Best Short Film at the Berlin Film Festival. One should also not miss the selection of vital Slovenian productions and filmmakers, who are either returning to Isola Cinema or coming for the first time, and will be present for Q&As after the screenings. In addition, we should also mention the Luksuz or ZVVIKS and other productions, whose workshops have repeatedly proven to be exceptionally fruitful spaces for film creation, having for years regularly contributed to the making of stirring documentaries and proper little animated masterpieces, whose quality you can check out in person under the starry sky. See you on the beach!
