About the author

Jernej Myint is an architect by profession, but an illustrator and animator by heart. He likes to draw, animate, learn and teach. He experiments with illustrations, applying them to walls and on children's books covers, and brings them to life in animated videos. He enjoys pushing back his limits and learning new things - everything that is needed to implement yet another unforgettable project.

His work makes him happy, his working days pass swiftly. Consequently, his evenings can be very short - sometimes only lasting a couple of minutes. The Secret Life of a Capercaillie in five seasons is his first short (feature) animated film. :)
