

Punk Under a Communist Regime

A story about the punk scene in Slovenia, between 1977-85. The bands were formed by teenagers which triggered a wave of repression by the Communist party.

A documentary about the Slovenian punk scene between 1977 and 1985: the bands formed were all made up of high school students who, despite their youth, quickly began to perform and triggered a wave of repression by the communist party. While Marshall Tito was dying in Ljubljana, an outburst of incredible creativity from young people took place in Slovenia, who no longer agreed to the party's one-mindedness. This was the first serious countercultural blow in the former Yugoslavia followed by a "Nazi punk affair" that put the three protagonists of the punk scene in custody. While English punks gathered in pubs, Slovenian punks gathered in the city center on Johnny Rotten Square. They were living in dangerous times.

Director
Andrej Kosak

Producer
Zoran Dževerdanović – Zavod Blade produkcija

Countries
Slovenia, Serbia, Bulgaria

Status
Finished

Running time
104'

Genres
Archive, Human Rights, LGBTQ, Music, Politics, Society

Screening formats
HD File, DCP

Transmedia platform
Pitch the doc; <https://platform.pitchthedoc.com/my/projects>

Looking for Festivals, Sales and Distributors

www.bladeproduction.com/punk-under-communist-regime/

Production company
Zavod Blade produkcija
Trg prekomorskih brigad 1,
1000 Ljubljana, Slovenia
+38 641 386 185
info@bladeproduction.com

Co-producers
Goran Radovanović, Stanislav
Donchev – Nama Film (RS) –
Dynamic Arts (BG)

Cinematography
Gregor Kitek

Script
Andrej Košak, Dušan Moravec

Editing
Maja Kokić

Sound
Ekaterina Ivanova